WILDERNESS WAYS

Alone a sleeping bag produces no warmth. All it does is to delay the loss of bodily warmth by insulating the individual against undue waste of heat and from wind and cold. The most effective insulation is dry, still air. Therefore the effectiveness of a sleeping bag in keeping one warm is not due to their weight but to the number of dead air cells they contain. The thicker and fluffier a sleeping bag, the more inert air it affords.

The best insulator is genuine waterfowl down. The down is expensive and some manufactures mix in a few feathers to lower the cost but at the same time they lower the insulating properties. Modern sleeping bags utilize more effective insulating materials which are thicker and lighter than blankets. Dacron, a synthetic fibre developed by Dupont, which is light and durable, has a heat retaining value approximately midway between down and wool. It is good for summer and fall but not for extreme cold. Wool batting and kapok bags are sold in some stores. This is a very inexpensive bag but the material mats with use. It would be wise to shop around, add a few more dollars, and purchase one of the less expensive down bags.

The filler must be enclosed in a light and tightly woven fabric from which it cannot escape. This container should be sewed into compartments so that the filler will have a uniform thickness throughout and will not shift. Outside of this layer is a strong light cover which should be water resistant and fairly impervious to wind but not waterproof. If it were waterproof, it would, unless kept partly open, confine the vapor that the body throws off. This would make the bag clammy and cold. In frigid weather this would mean freezing to death.

The mummy bag is by far the best for backpacking. In addition to its lightness and compactness the volume of the bag which must be heated by the body is kept at a minimum. Furthermore, the surface area of the bag through which this heat is lost is likewise kept as small as possible. To attain maximum comfort one has to have an air mattress under a good and adequate bag. One of these require only a few minutes to inflate. A bowse mattress takes approximately one half an hour for proper making, and then it mats down enough to be uncomfortably hard after the first night. Most individuals have the natural tendency to pump their air mattress too full. It will be just about right if you will inflate it until you can just barely touch the ground when pressing down on the center with your fist. If weight and space are important, a good air mattress to purchase is one about four feet long. This should be located beneath the shoulders and hips. Bowse may then be used to level off under the head and shoulders. The mattress should be laid on a hard, flat surface.

Brennan captured opening tournament

Mike Brennan pulled a big upset in the opening tournament of the Tamarack Golf Club last weekend and defeated highly favored Yvon Morin by 7 strokes to take top honours. Mike opened with a 83 to go 3 strokes over Morin's score, but finished with a 78 for a 161 total. Yvon ran second to Brennan with a 168.

About 100 male golfers were joined by 9 females in the tourney. The weatherman did not show any co-operation for a minute as he sent down 1.19 in. of rain on the golfers and course on Saturday and then followed up with low 40 degree temperatures and 38 M.P.H. North West winds on Sunday.

A steak barbecue and presentation of prizes was held on Sunday night.

Prize winners were as follows: Low Gross - Mike Brennan, Men, Mrs. Marge Roberts, Ladies, Low Net - Yvon Morin, Men, Mrs. Pat Brennan, Ladies, Second Low Gross went to Reg Lambert and Second Low Net to Bill Taciuk.

The winner received prizes of Golf Accessories which were bought by the Club. Funds raised by the tournament will go toward the promotion of Junior Golf.

SPORTS SPOTLIGHT

WABUSH FORCED TO WITHDRAW FROM SOFTBALL TOURNAMENT

The Wabush ladies, who had strong hopes of capturing the Newfoundland Ladies Softball Championship this year, will never know how well they would have done. The tournament will be held at Goose Bay this weekend and, no doubt, the best team at the meet will win. I am very curious, however, about how well the Wabush Ladies would stand up in the big battle. The team had paid its registration and had practiced hard and long in preparation for the battle of the giants. Due to the current money shortage and the work crisis in the area, it has been impossible for the team to raise the necessary funds to cover expenses to and from Goose Bay.

LAB CITY "B" LEAGUE RUNNING SMOOTHLY

Organized sports in the Wabush - Lab City area have been hit hard by the current work shortages and gas shortages. The Wabush Industrial Softball League never got off the ground due to acute player shortages. The Labrador City "A" Softball League made an attempt to beat the player problem but it had to close. With both those leagues inoperative it has been possible for the Lab City "B" Softball League to continue operation. Five teams have entered this league; Dominion, Administration, Juniors, Wabush and a team made up from the scrapped "A" League.

Wabush weather statistics

The Department of Transport, Weather Office at Wabush Airport provided the following statistics.

Normal June:	June 1969.
Snowfall 4.2 inches	1.6 inches
Rainfall 3.38 inches	4.53 inches
Total Precipitation 3.80 inches	4.69 inches
Normal July:	To July 11, 1969.
Snowfall 0.0 inches	.1 inches
Rainfall 4.20 inches	2.39 inches
Total precipitation 4.20 inches	2.40 inches

July '69 figures are from the period of the 1 to the 11. Snow fell on July 6 and 7, with thunderstorms on July 4 and 7.

The low recorded temperature was 32 and the high 74, which was reached July 11 and the highest recorded so far this season.

Scuba diving courses begin

Twenty-two persons have enrolled in a scuba diving course which got underway this week at the Wabush Recreation Center Swimming pool.

Three instructors are on hand and the course is being conducted in affiliation with the Y.M.C.A. After three months of training, final exams are written, under the supervision of two instructors from the Y.M.C.A., Montreal.

Ron Brophy, recreation director at Wabush, says that plans are now underway to make this course available to interested people in the area.

Go - cart show, race planned

On Saturday, July 19, the Wabush Summer Recreation program will be sponsoring a Go - Cart show and races. All children of Wabush are invited to participate. Details of the event may be obtained from the Recreation Center or from the notice board in the shopping center.

Lost property

The RCMP in Labrador City have the following lost property in their possession. The owners may claim same by contacting the detachment in the Town Hall.

- One ladies' Timex wrist watch, gold, black nylon strap.
- One ladies' Timex wrist watch with silver bracelet.
- One man's Timex wrist watch with leather strap.
- One ladies' Temex wrist watch with gold bracelet.
- One pair of Alpine champion skis, with poles, children's skis with one broken ski.
- Key to a Mustang vehicle with pen and IBM card.
- One brown leather rifle case.
- One ski-do belt size 2248.
- One wheel cover for motor vehicle.
- Two pair of black glasses.
- One pair of black gloves.
- A red and white change purse.
- One blue and white "Royaline" girls bicycle.

Scout activities

In this issue of "Aurora", we would like to tell you of the beautiful portrait our records are now showing in regards to first aid badges and St. John Ambulance certificates earned by your sons and daughters in the past 18 months.

We are fortunate to have amongst us a certified St. John Ambulance instructor who devotes time and money for this great cause in the person of Scouter C. Tardiff.

Digging into his records, Scouter Tardiff revealed that 155 Girl Guides and Scouts now hold either the Silver Stage First Badge together with their preliminary First Aid Certificate of the St. John Ambulance or their Gold Stage badge together with a more advanced certificate called fundamentals of first aid on the St. John Ambulance.

All certificates bear a number and are registered at the head office in Ottawa. With refresher courses, and as the children get older, they will have a wonderful opportunity to better themselves to other stages such as first aid to the injured, their coucher, medallion etc. Thus we feel that the seed now being sown will surely become a colossal tree.

Considering that one course involves six to eight weeks at two lectures per week, for a class of 20 at the most, is an effort worth mentioning. Attendance on the whole has been excellent considering the weather and activities that are at the disposal of students.

A course ends with two examinations. The questionnaires for the written exam are supplied by the association, and covers the book, "Fundamentals of First Aid".

The oral test is conducted by either a medical doctor or a qualified examiner of the St. John Ambulance Association. Orally, the students are questioned on artificial respiration, control of hemorrhage and other practical subjects contained in the course. They are asked to show their "savoir-faire" in the way of demonstrations, such as bandaging, slings, and stretcher bearing service etc.

The courses are now discontinued for the summer months but will commence again next fall.

Nevertheless, let us hope that somewhere along the path of life, thanks to the foundations thrown in by Scouter Tardiff, somewhere, somehow, these guides may save a life because of these courses. It may be yours.

SIR ISAAC BROCK STAMP TO BE ISSUED - Major - General Sir Isaac Brock, K.B., "Hero of Upper Canada," who died on Queenston Heights leading his troops in the successful defense of Canada, is to be commemorated during the 200th anniversary of the year of his birth by the release of a Canada Post Office stamp on September 12, 1969. Brock, born on the Island of Guernsey on October 6, 1769, died on October 13, 1812.

Scanning the market

by
C.S. DEVINE

Before commencing this week's comments I should attempt to answer two recent questions. Are you making any money on the market? What part of the market do you find most difficult? My reply to the first question is very brief. After the recent sell-off; no. But in answering the second question you will know why. Basically its impatience. Between June 1967 - June 1968, I made amongst others) the following purchases and by early 1969 had disposed of all hares.

STOCK:	NUMBER:	PURCHASES	SELLING	PRICE:	PRICE:	PROFIT	CURRENT
United Bata	2,000	2,900	2,500	Loss	17,000
Brenda Mines	200	1,200	1,800	400
					600
Unican Securities	700	2,100	4,700	2,600	3,150
Eagle Gold Mines	500	750	1,000	250	3,500
Van Ness Ltd.	1,000	400	600	200	5,350
			7,350		10,600

*N.B. These are as of the current depressed prices.

So you see if I held these stocks and sold as of 10th of July, I would have made a profit of $24,450 instead of $3,250.

Over the past three years I have found that if you study carefully, your tentative purchase, you can make money 90% of the time. However, as you can see by the above, timing and patience are of the utmost importance.

Analysts seem divided, at the moment, on the future course of the market; here are excerpts from recent reviews.

"The market still reacts to news of lower prospects for an early end to the Vietnam war, to news of the increase in the U.S. banks' prime rate and to threats of other credit tightening if business does not slacken by the end of summer.

But despite recent weakness, the market does not really believe that anti-inflationary efforts will be successful this year or that they will have much effect on 1969 corporate profits.

Inflation will still continue strongly this year, despite a reduction in real business activity. The rise in prices will be strengthened by the large component of service prices in the consumer price structure. So while business slowdown is in sight, more time will be needed to reduce inflation. The high level of interest rates will continue until more evidence of a business decline is seen.

The implication of all this for the stock market is that prices should continue to move in a narrow range, but with weakness prevailing over strength."

"We have been recommending a cautious approach to the stock market since the turn of the year. This approach requires the maintenance or development of some reserve buying power and the upgrading of the quality of holdings.

Within the limitations of this conservative stance, stocks should include Noranda Mines, Intl. Nickel, Moore Copr., Dominion Textile, Burns Foods.

Among junior issues, we continue to recommend Sullivan Mines Ltd., Realty Capital, and Spar Aerospace."

"Despite the heavy hand of fiscal and monetary policies, the Canadian economy is still in a strong upswing. The acceleration of activity is sufficient to enable the federal government to predict a large increase in revenues and therefore a substantial budget surplus."

It follows that stocks should now be looked at more closely than ever. With the view to buying in."

Shop wisely you could hit the jackpot. (I lost mine, United Bata).

On the lighter side

By C.S. Devine

To try and dispel the notion that all financial papers and magazines are dull and dry, I have over the past three or four months, clipped from the various finance publications, the following. Trust you find them interesting and possibly humorous:

THE NATIONS BUSINESS:

(a) Representative Fred Schwengel, Iowa Republican, addressing the House in Washington, in rebuttal to a "Keep America Beautiful" television film depicting the hog as stupid and unclean. "I like pigs, and I honestly believe that most pigs like me. Hogs are beautiful. Some of my best friends are hogs."

(b) Gilbert Rondeau, M.P. (Shefford) addressing the House of Commons in Ottawa. "If the federal government offered $200 at birth of every new Canadian, and the government of the province where the child is born gave $100, we would not have to talk about abortion any more."

(c) Ambrose Hubert Peddle, M.P. (Grand Falls-White Bay-Labrador) addressing the House of Commons in Ottawa. "In order to offset the cost of television our proceedings (in the Commons) perhaps we could have sponsors for different speakers. For instance, the prime minister might be sponsored by Flower Shops Inc. 'Flowers around the corner or around the world.' On alternate days perhaps he might be sponsored by Max Factor the kiss-proof lipstick people."

SIDE EFFECTS

I find, upon observing sideburns, That there are thin burns, there are wide burns, There is no rule, there is no law; Some come half way, some reach the jaw, Some are as scraggly as a beard, While some are neatly trimmed and sheared. Each owner is, I've found, so proud I'd best not make remarks aloud. My views of sideburns thus I hide, And make my comments on the side.

Mining and taxes

Canadians from coast to coast would find their standard of living challenged as a consequence of any uncertainties or curtailment of present tax incentives related to the mining industry.

This is the conclusion of "Taxes, the Mining Industry and Economic Growth," a booklet just published by the Mining Association of Canada.

Any doubt about taxation policy, particularly the percentage allowance and the three year tax exemption period for new mines would "threaten the very basis of the minerals industry," states the booklet.

John L. Bonus, managing director of MAC, explained that "in view of the pending White Paper on Taxation, we felt a concise review of the existing tax provisions relating to mining would help clarify mining's past, present and potential impact on the Canadian economy. It is intended to put into perspective whatever the White Paper on Taxation recommends," he said.

The booklet reviews the two major tax provisions related to mining: the percentage allowance and the three year tax exemption for new mines. The percentage allowance to producing mines recognizes the fact that the mining industry is dealing with wasting assets; that a mine's value and life span diminishes in proportion to the amount mined. The allowance is a percentage of the net profits and losses before taxes reasonably attributable to mine production. The three year tax exemption period for new mines was enacted in recognition of the high risk involved in finding new ore bodies and opening new mines.

Because of the unique aspect of mining and its competitive nature world-wide, "it is imperative that a firm decision be taken as soon as possible to maintain present government tax policy towards the minerals industry." Extensive changes or lingering uncertainty in tax policy would threaten long-range mineral development. That, in turn, would reduce exploration, cut mining production and cause serious implications to the vast segment of the Canadian economy dependent on the continued growth of the mining industry.

"Extreme caution is necessary before changing an economic policy which has been so successful, particularly in the minerals industries where unknown factors of nature pose so many difficulties," warns the booklet.

Mining, forging ahead at a growth rate at least twice that of the overall Canadian industrial sector, employs more than 130,000 Canadians. The industry is also credited with "creating employment for an additional six or seven persons for every one person directly employed in the industry."

The mining industry's economic impact has been also evident in regional development.

"Mineral production in Canada in 1968 amount to $4.7 billion, almost 10 times higher than at the end of World War II," the booklet points out. To increase production, the industry has been penetrating remote areas of the country opening mines and building mining towns. "In the modern era of Canadian life, the mining industry has been the pioneer in opening up the country... (establishing) a presence which would not otherwise occur short of massive government development programs."

The mining industry's capital and repair expenditures averaging $972 million, plus

HELP WANTED

Advertisement in the Varsity, University of Toronto student newspaper: "Student information officer wanted, to organize group action around student problems during the academic year, such as the march (against student loans) this year. Applicants must have a genuine interest in working with students and a commitment and a willingness to work long hours. Salary $95 a week, $10 extra if married, $15 extra for each child."

THE TROOPS

Soviet boys are becoming effeminate because they don't have enough male teachers, an influential Russian newspaper said. The publication, Literary Gazette expressed concern about the possible effects on the armed forces. "The boys of today" it said, "will be the soldiers of the future."

SUPER PSYCHO

The well-adjusted person need not have more lofty aims than playing golf and bridge as if both of them were games.

Coffee shop opens

The Joint Board of Management of the Anglican - United Churches have approved the formation of a Youth Association. While the association is under the supervision of the churches, it has full autonomy.

At a recent meeting, Ronnie Hicks was elected, president; Joan Hardie, secretary and Manuel Espisito, treasurer. The group are now in the process of setting up an entertainment program.

The old United Church building is being used as a Coffee House and meeting place for members. Present hours of operation are, Tuesday's and Saturday's from 7 p.m. to midnight. Membership is open to all Youth in the area between the ages of 16 and 19.

Books wanted

If there are any people in Wabush who would be willing to donate any used games or books (story or comics) to the Wabush Recreation Program, you are asked to call the Recreation Center and they will be picked up.

Looking after your pet

It seems unthinkable that the holiday season, which brings pleasure to so many people, should be made the occasion for inflicting suffering on household pets. But such is the case. The advent of summer holidays means, in numberless cases the arrival of a period of acute misery for pets. To those who are in ignorance we would like to point out that the neglect of a cat or dog is a punishable offence:

If you wonder what to do with your pet while you are away, here are some suggestions from the Labrador City Branch of the S.P.C.A. - Ashuanipi Social Club - Movie "Girl in the Kremlin" starting 9 p.m.

Royal Theatre - "Blue" in color and starring Terence Stamp.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 23

Legion, Wabush - Movie "Hatari" starring John Wayne.

Ashuanipi Social Club - Games starting at 9 p.m.

Royal Theatre - "Blue" in color and starring Terence Stamp.

(1) Get a neighbor or relation to go into the house to feed the animal, allow it to exercise and secure it for the night.

(2) Get neighbors or relations to look after the pet in their home. (Tell them to be careful, or the pet might run from their care and make its way to its own home).

Do not imagine it is humane to leave enough food handy for the duration of your holiday. The cat or dog will eat it all in the first day or two and starve for the rest of the time, unless the food is given daily by some appointed person.
