HOCKEY SCHOOL — It was a great way to learn a great Canadian game! Some seventy boys of Labrador West took part in a hockey school recently under the able direction of famed NHL player Ralph Backstrom. Here, some of the boys are given tips on fine points in the all-demanding game. The hockey school concluded last weekend and it is considered a real success. (Biron Photo).

Steelworker members vote in favor of a new collective agreement

Members of the United Steelworkers of America, Local 5795 in Labrador City voted 88.8% in favour of a new collective agreement at the conclusion of a six hour ratification meeting which was held on Friday August 29th.

Labrador City workers have not been on strike but many of them have been laid off for various periods of time because of the strike at the Loading Dock at Sept Iles.

The new collective agreement is for a period of 40 months, dating back to October 23, 1968 and expiring March 1, 1972. Many of the benefits are retro-active to the expiration date of the last agreement.

Highlights of the new agreement are: a reduction of the work week from 48 hours to 40 hours with the same take home pay, plus cash payments of what is called the work week reduction allowance, which averages over $4,500.00 per employee, including retroactivity on the wage rates as the rates apply.

In addition the contract calls for time and one half for hours in excess of 40 hours per week or 8 hours per day. Time and one half for employees, working on their scheduled day off. Time and one half for the first 8 hours on Sundays. Double time for hours on Sunday worked in excess of 8 hours per day or 40 straight hours per week.

The afternoon shift premium is increased from $0.08 per hour to $0.10 and midnight shift from $0.12 to $0.15.

Additional clauses covering lunch periods, vacation days and vacation pay, Welfare plan, early retirement and pension plan are included in the contract.

The first payment to employees of the work week reduction allowance will be paid this weekend. A tradesman in Job Class 2, will receive another cash payment of $1,589.00, with the final installment of $226.00 payable December 1, 1971.

An employee in Job Class 16 will receive $2,578.00 and next September $1,884.00 with the final payment of $590.00 on December 1, 1971.

Job Class one, the lowest job classification, received $2.72 per hour at the expiration of the old agreement October 23, 1968, will now receive $2.88 and

March 1, 1970 $3.03 and $3.18 as of March 1, 1971.

Job classification 18, received 3.995 per hour October 23, 1968 $4.130 March 1, 1969, $4.24 as of the date of signing the agreement with a further raise to $4.411 March 1, 1970 and $4.625 March 1, 1971.

The Local representing Warehouse employees of the Iron Ore Company of Canada also voted last Friday, but rejected their agreement. There are approximately 40 employees in this local.

Seven hundred employees on strike against the Iron Ore Company in Schefferville held a ratification vote on Saturday August 30. The agreement was accepted with 58% voting in favour, while the Warehouse employees with a membership of 100, rejected the proposal presented to them by the Company.

The only workers in the Mining Complex of Labrador West, Sept Iles area now on strike are 750 employees of Wabush Mines at Pointe Noire, the strikers comprise, Production, Maintenance, Office, Personnel and Security workers.

A mediator from the Quebec Department of Labour has now entered the negotiations. A reliable source indicates that a settlement should be reached by this weekend.

Affected by the strike at Pointe Noire are approximately 600 hourly paid workers of Scully Mines in Wabush. These workers were laid off and have been out of work for nearly four months.

The overall situation at Schefferville and Labrador City is rapidly returning to normal. Mining operations at Labrador City are now in full production, with Schefferville expected to commence operations today.

War arms production: big business which thrives on battles, threats

Since 1945 there have been around the globe 55 wars of significant size and intensity. And if one adds coups, major riots and similar events, the total cases of armed conflict since World War II, with an impact on the course of history would exceed fifteen score, or more than one per month.

Starting with this distressing information, George Thayer in "The War Business" examines with a keen scrutiny the vast, rapidly growing international trade in armaments. As he sees things, this trade is the prime culprit in the violent postwar record. Mr. Thayer's main point is that the postwar arms trade — of which Uncle Sam is demonstrably the major practitioner — has led directly to a higher level of violence. Put another way, much of the violence would not have been possible, were it not for the ready availability of weapons ranging from carbines to tanks.

The yearly volume of this trade in conventional weapons, approximates $5 billion, more money than the entire world spent on defense in the early 1930s. And, Mr. Thayer contends, "if we were to plot a graph of the volume of conventional armaments given away or sold since 1945 by the great industrial powers or by private merchants, one would find that the upward curve would closely parallel the curve on the incidence of violence since 1945.

Among the major political consequences of this proliferation of weapons, was the fall of Ludwig Erhard's government in West Germany in 1966 (because Bonn could not afford U.S. military equipment that Uncle Sam urged it to purchase) and the Pakistan — India war of 1965 which would not have broken out, had there been no large infusion of American arms into the area.

Mr. Thayer's contention that such outbreaks as the Pakistan — India war would not have taken place were it not for the profusion of arms is, of course, debatable. It's possible the war would have been fought, if necessary, with sticks and stones; after all violence is as old as history. It can also be argued that delivery of weapons to such embattled lands as Israel may have averted national slaughters.

There can be little doubt, however, that the postwar arms trade has added to the temptations of war-making.

The U.S. has clearly been the major contributor to the international arms buildup, although the Russians have also played a major role. Since 1945 the U.S. has pumped some $50 billion of arms into world markets. This means, that between the years 1950 and 1966, the U.S. Government either gave away or sold 9,300 jet fighter aircraft, 8,340 other aircraft, 2,496 naval craft of all types, 19,827 tanks, 448,383 other combat vehicles, 1,445,194 carbines, 2,152,793 rifles, 82,496 sub-machine guns, 71,174 machine guns, 30,668 mortars, 25,106 field guns and howitzers and 31,360 missiles of all types.

Looking ahead, Mr. Thayer paints a disturbing picture. Any nation that wants arms today can readily obtain them, there

Scanning the market

By C.S. DEVINE

In spite of excellent first half (Jan. - June) profit reports it seems the usual post Labor Day rally has failed to materialize. What does the market need to commence a return to last spring's levels? Just look at some recent reports! In the majority of cases these improved earnings have failed to move share prices upward. As a matter of fact many values have fallen.

First half profit 1968 $2,325,000 - 1969 $4,302,000. And so it goes, but no market increase.

I quote from a recent investment house letter.

As the steady erosion of stock prices continues, it becomes the season for cliches such as the one in which the customers man says, "Yes, Mr. Jones, your stock is down, but there is very little volume," or the account executive to a client, "There really is no selling, but a lack of enthusiasm and very few bids," or the salesman says, "The rally is just around the corner because we've got to be close to the bottom now."

Each of these statements may contain a great deal of truth, but the fact is that stock prices are lower today than six months ago. This is the only thing on an investor's mind.

Most people connected with the investment business have never seen a severe drop in the market, or just do not believe one can happen. Hence, they tend to rationalize their own non-action and usually believe that the "worst is about over."

The only truism that appeals to us is the one the cagey oldtimer used. "I am never surprised how high a stock goes up and am never surprised how low a stock goes down."

Everyone knew the market was too high and a correction was long overdue. We all knew money was getting tighter, that there was little progress in Vietnam, that interest rates were rising, and that new issues were being offered to the public at a rapid rate. The selloff had to come. However, what surprised many is that while any selloffs during the last three years have been sharp and short-lived they have been followed by further growth in stock prices, the reverse is the case now.

Bargains abound (another cliché) and, for those who are sincere investors prepared to accept a normal rate of investment return and who have not been spoiled by the free - and - easy profits of the past couple of years, there are several situations worthy of accumulation during the coming months.

It is our intention that the upturn, when it comes, will see the better quality issues lead the market up, rather than the deal stocks or the second-line junior industrials.

On the lighter side

It's beginning to look like those who maintain that the world owes them a living are going to win.

Those who criticize the younger generation seem to forget who raised it.

Friend, does your wife complain about having to water the lawn while you are out on the golf course doing your part to further physical fitness? She does? Then show her this: A New Jersey hose maker has determined by survey that seven out of 10 housewives do this job. Only 10 years ago, one woman in 10 did the watering. The sales pitch is that a garden hose is an ideal gift for Mother's Day, her birthday, Christmas or any other occasion on which you want to demonstrate affection. In some households, of course, Lover Boy could find himself standing in the doorway with that hose wrapped around his neck.

Psychiatrist: "Do you have much trouble making up your mind?"

Patient: "Well, yes and no."

Daughter: "What sort of a husband should I look for?"

Mother: "Take my advice. Leave the husbands alone and look for a good single man."

You can count on it- the only people who listen to both sides of an argument are the neighbours.

A man and his wife were given two tickets to the theatre, but found they would be unable to use them. Annoyed, the wife phoned a friend and said, "Would you like a couple of theatre tickets for next Friday night? As luck would have it, we're invited to a stupid dinner party and can't use them."

"Sorry," the friend replied, "but that's the night we're giving a stupid dinner party."

Reviews of newly published books year, she discovers a deepening happiness with Pete, who has become, without her realizing it, more than a friend.

As Jan tells of herself and of what happens, the reader is given an evocative, fine etched portrait of a sensitive girl gradually gaining confidence in herself and in her relationships with others. Mildred Lawrence, whose daughter is only a little older than Jan, has remarkable insight and sympathy for young people, and she lets Jan unfold her own story with great restraint, lightened always by humor. This remarkably fine young adult novel brims with revealing experiences and sound human values.

TESTIMONY OF TWO MEN —TAYLOR CALDWELL

modern medicine against nineteenth - century opposition and ignorance.

TESTIMONY OF TWO MEN tells the story of Jonathan Ferrier, a brilliant and persecuted physician hounded by the double furies of a tragic past and threatened present. The complex and capricious healer of Hambleton, Dr. Ferrier remains an enigma to both his medical enemies and friends. Even a sympathetic outsider, Dr. Robert Morgan — fresh from Johns Hopkins and Dr. Ferrier's personal associate — is hard pressed to separate the facts from the lies in the rumors that surround his controversial mentor. What is known by everyone is that Jonathan Ferrier's wife — a girlish and near - legendary beauty named Mavis — died in circumstances as grisly as they were well - publicized.

In unraveling — often brutally, sometimes poignantly — the terrible secret of Jonathan Ferrier's life, Miss Caldwell brings into play an astonishing range of characterization and motive: the lusty, laughing, almost demonic Mavis whose memory haunts her husband like the incarnation of despair; Dr. Ferrier's gentle and indomitable mother (the grande dame of Hambleton) whose affection provides balm against the prevailing resentment and hostility of her son's fellow doctors; the two "strangers on the island" — brother Harold and lovely "niece", Jenny, the one likeable and corrupt, the other innocent and heroic — and powerful and venal politicians who plot to destroy Jonathan Ferrier. To these men and women — seen either through Jonathan Ferrier's disillusioned eyes or Dr. Morgan's candid point of view — Miss Caldwell brings compassionate yet cynical observations that culminate in her most accomplished and memorable work of fiction.

TAYLOR CALDWELL has long been one of the most popular of American writers. At a very early age she announced to Mark Twain that she, too, was a writer; and books have been her profession ever since. Dynasty of Death, published in 1938, established her success, and the novels she has written since have confirmed it. Among the more famous are: Dear and Glorious Physician, A Prologue to Love, Grand - mother and the Priests, and A Pillar of Iron. Miss Caldwell was born in Manchester, England, and has lived for years in Buffalo, New York.

GOOD MORNING, MY HEART

—MILDRED LAWRENCE

Jan Barnaby wasn't the least bit like her three older sisters. They were gay and outgoing, with curly blonde hair; she was quiet and dark-haired like her father. Somehow, Jan had always thought she'd "blossom out" at college, but when she got there, she wasn't much different from what she had always been — too shy and timid to make easy conversation on a date and unable to do any one thing spectacularly well.

But slowly Jan finds her own quiet way — first making friends with her room - mate, then beginning to do odd jobs on the school paper for Pete Loomis, its editor. Eventually she is caught up in a project to better the living conditions of migrant Mexican fruit pickers in the valley. And by the end of the are scores of suppliers, governments and private businessmen, eager to make a sale. No one wants to control the trade in conventional arms. He holds out the possibility that Uncle Sam may yet decide to take the initiative in seeking curbs.

Most governments, including the U.S., tend to view the arms business as a handy moneymaking proposition, not simply as an exercise in military self - interest.

Some of the "entrepreneurs" who have grown very rich dealing in weapons, such as Samuel Cummings, a 42 year old American who dislikes the suggestion that his business is all that immoral and argues that he is no more responsible for what his customers do with his weapons than distillers are for drunks or automobile manufacturers are for highway deaths.

Send them to bed with a kiss

Oh mothers, so weary, discouraged,
Worn Out with the cares of the day,
You often grow cross and impatient,
Complain of the noise and the play;
For the day brings so many vexations,
So many things going amiss;
But, mothers, whatever may vex you,
Send the children to bed with a kiss.

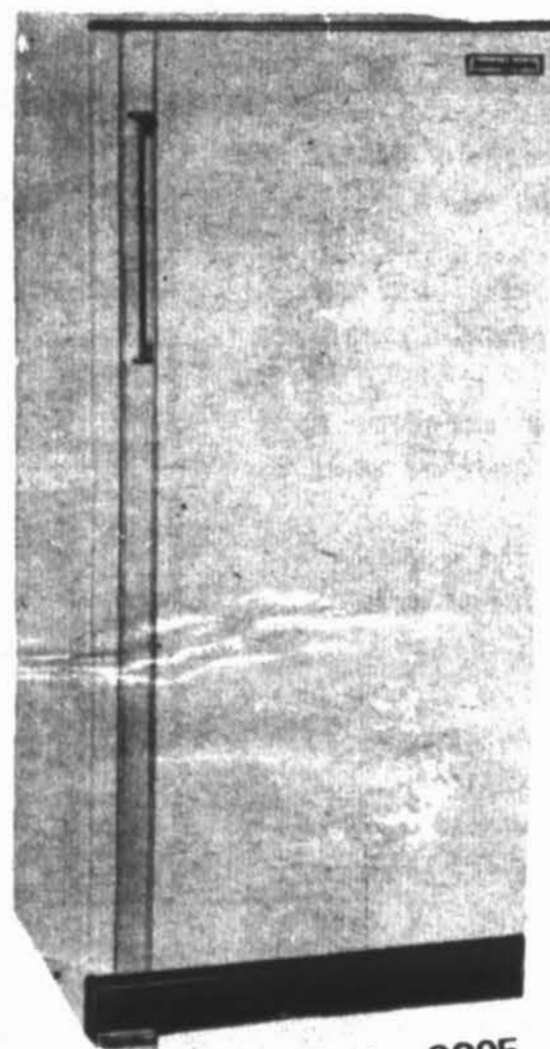

The dear little feet wander often,
Perhaps from the pathway of right;
The dear little hands find new mischief
To try you from morning till night,
But think of the desolate mothers
Who'd give all the world for your bliss,
And, as thanks for your infinite blessings
Send the children to bed with a kiss.

For some day their noise will not vex you—
The silence will hurt you far more;
You will long for the sweet children's voices,
For a sweet childish face at your door;
And to press a child's face to your bosom,
You'd give all the world just for this
For the comfort 'twill give you in sorrow,
Send the children to bed with a kiss

this week in ASTROLOGY

BY CARL PAYNE TOBEY
ILLUSTRATED BY DE GRAZIA

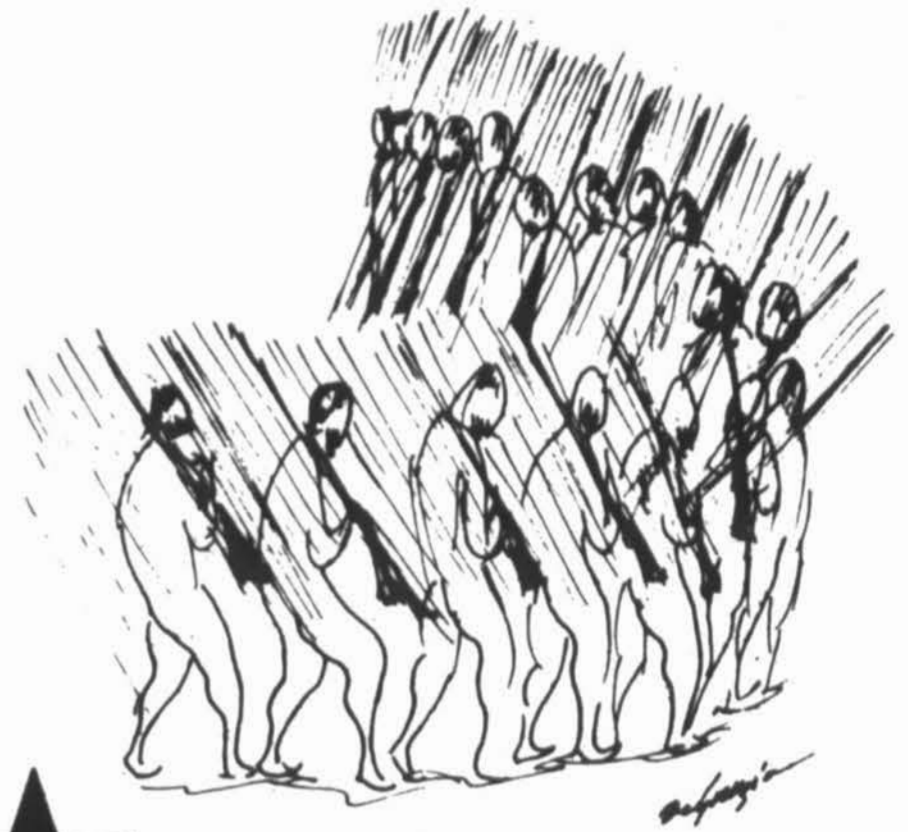

PAST

PSYCHOLOGY AND PSYCHIATRY

Joyce Brothers, a nice-looking woman with a Ph.D. in psychology, refers to astrology as spinach. On the other hand, the famous psychiatrist, Dr. Carl Jung, stated: There have been many striking analogies between the astrological and the psychological event or the horoscope and the characterological disposition. For example, there is even the possibility of predicting somewhat the psychic effect of a transit. One can expect with considerable assurance that a given well-defined psychological situation will be accompanied by an analogous astrological configuration.

TAURUS PLAYBOY

Conscious of possible consequences, he thinks everything over before he plays too hard. You'll probably find him a safe and conservative companion, but be cautious about playing games with him, because he won't react the way you think he is supposed to. If you think you can mold him into what you want, guess again. You'll take him as he is, or you won't take him. He's bullish.

TOBEY'S PREDICTION:

Youth is active this week. The war against hypocrisy is in the background. Independence can be a strong factor. Vast numbers of people want to head in some new direction. There can be very explosive tendencies in some places. This can be a time of beginnings and endings. Take your time and try to understand what is going on. Scientific progress.

THE GRAND CANYON AGAIN

In May, we presented an aerospace engineer's concept that the earth may have split open to form the Grand Canyon, instead of water having washed away solid rock to a depth of one mile. It was pointed out that for the erosion theory to be true the Little Colorado River would originally have had to flow uphill for 40 miles from Cameron to the Colorado River. Orthodox "scientists" think that as the water eroded the rock, the land rose at the exact same rate of speed, this continuing over millions of years. Great timing, but the probability against its being true approaches infinity. It calls for a new spectacular in coincidence.

ARMCHAIR FISHING

A collapsible float belt is attached to a pair of wading boots so that a fisherman can wade safely in a stream while remaining completely dry. When expanded, the float provides a ledge for holding a tackle box and other equipment as well as supporting a backrest and a pair of armrests. Fins on the sides of the legs allow the fisherman to "paddle" from place to place
