Round and About

Now that many of our residents who had their chests' expanded, during and shortly after the visit of the House of Commons, Standing Committee on Transport, have had an opportunity to exhale, let's take a second look at M.P.'s reactions.

The following remarks were made by Members of Parliament at a social gathering in Labrador City, Friday 12 Sept. 1969. (In that comments came from the majority of the group it was not possible to identify individuals, only to say that Mr. A. Peddle (Grand Falls - White Bay - Labrador) did not make any of these statements.

On the Thursday night reception at Wabush Airport. (a) "We did not come here to be insulted. Certainly we will listen and listen attentively to any justifiable complaints." (b) "Placards and signs I don't mind but hissing and booing is definitely in bad taste."

On Labrador City (a) "Tonight I visited the dirtiest shopping plaza I've seen in my life." (He was referring to the Carol Lake Shopping Center Ltd.) "That spot is filthy, don't you have anyone around here enforcing a Food & Drug Act?"

So while some may say 'We sure told those fellows'. Did we in reality win any friends or influence any people?

I presume you were delegated as I, on receiving several "very informative" publications through the mails earlier this month (and for free yet). From the "L.L." and "T.Y.W.A.F.J.", I was impressed with this statement. "Keep our public finances in a good sound position, so that the banks and financial houses will continue to have their present confidence in our Province."

After further careful study of these "journalistic gems", I decided to read my copy of Financial Post, not quite as interesting or thought provoking, agreed, it's not every day you can read, 'Almighty God has blessed me, he has endowed me'.

Perusing the Post I saw the following: SOLD, NEW ISSUE, AUGUST 1969 - Province of Newfoundland, Canada. DM 80,000,000 ($21.6 million Can.) 7 1/4 Deutsche Mark Bonds.

Nothing new, Nfld. and several other provinces have borrowed in Germany. Then the realization, these bonds are repayable in Deutsche Marks. To my knowledge all previous loans by Germany to N. America have been payable in U.S. or Canadian Dollars. More money down the drain? It is a well known fact that after the German Federal election of 28 Sept. almost certainly the Mark will be Upvalued. This could cost this Province Millions of Dollars, in interest and repayment of principal. Yes finances are in a good sound position!

This seems to be a replica of last springs' financial policy when H.V. Earle, the Minister of Finance stated "We have decided that, at all costs, we will balance the budget. We will keep Newfoundland's name good in the financial markets of the world; we will maintain Newfoundland's credit; we will prove to all concerned that Newfoundland has the courage and the skill to balance is budget.

A little later he brought down a budget estimating a deficit of $50.2 million. Only four Provinces are estimating for deficits in the 1969 - 70 financial year (April - March).

Letter to the editor

Smokey Mountain membership

The Editor,
Aurora,
Labrador City,
Dear Sir:

I have been a resident of Labrador City for the past six years. For the last three I have been a member of the Smokey Mountain Ski Club, although I have not been an active member during this period. I usually spend Friday night's at the lodge with my freinds.

Since the club re - opened for dances, my friends and I have reason to believe that the privileges of the social members have been taken from them. Seeing as the ski lodge is a membership club, you would think that the executive of the club would see to it that the members enjoy some privacy in their own club house.

Not only do the members have to put up with outsiders invading their club on Friday nights, but these people are under age and cause a lot of fights that go on up there.

I do not intend for this letter to be a long recital on evil teenagers because I was one myself not too long ago but I think we should protect our club from undesirable elements. I do sympathize with some of these kids because I know they don't intend to do any harm and probably do not drink anything stronger than soft drinks.

The fact remains that they are not members of the lodge and should not be permitted to attend any of the club's functions.

I do believe that the blame lies with the executive of the lodge. If they took the trouble to appoint someone to check membership and make sure that those who attend the dances and are not twenty - one, do not buy liquor or have a friend buy it for them.

Another item of interest that has been brought to my attention is the fact that the membership fee has been raised this year. So if you decide to join be prepared to fork out forty dollars for a single membership and fifty five for family membership. There has been no allowance made for those who do not ski. I would think that they would have a special membership for social members, but perhaps they haven't thought of that.

I have been assured that there will be a tight check on memberships this weekend. We I hope they do and let's pray that none of the teenagers that do go there drive recklessly on the way home and kill themselves in the process because there will be hell to pay.

Yours truly

Carol Curling Club outlines new schedule of events

Welcome curlers and would-be curlers to the 1969-70 season! This year, as is usually forecast, promises to be the biggest and best ever. We expect to see many new faces mixed throughout the "old pros" and some interesting team combinations. I know you are anxious to know the lineup of events scheduled for this season and this summer's progress, so I'll get right down to business.

Executive as elected May 30, 1969: President: Ed Cobey; Past President: Karl Hiscock; Vice President, Bob Brawley; Treasurer, Chas. Devine; Secretary, Marg. GENERAL MEETING

The fall general meeting will be held on Saturday, October 4, 1969 at 8:00 p.m. and is to be followed by dancing. The bar will open immediately after the meeting. The success of the curling season depends on participation especially at the fall meeting, so please make a point to attend.

Please excuse the tardiness of this newsletter. I cannot announce the opening of the club as it has been open since September 5, 1969. I would suggest that you drop in and "talk" to Alf before the season gets underway as he is usually quite busy.

This season, curling begins with a:

COMING EVENTS

The club is happy to announce that from February 6, it will host the Newfoundland Men's Curling Championship. We can expect as many as 10 teams to compete in this event and I am sure you will see some excellent curling. So, members be sure to get a seat early for this event, as you won't want to miss a minute of this curling.

If you refer to the schedule, you will see that on Saturdays we plan to have an evening of social curling to be followed by dance. This is not serious curling so hope to see you on the ice (Penalties for packed teams!).

Here are the estimated Per Capita deficits for these four Provinces.

Newfoundland	$100.00 Per Person.
Quebec	40.00 Per Person.
Alberta	20.00 Per Person.
New Brunswick	16.00 Per Person.

All others are budgeting a small surplus. Excellent Money Management. Don't Forget Who Is Paying. Could it be you the reader?

Again we remind you that boxes are located in the shopping center at Labrador City and at the Wabush Shopping Center for your convenience in depositing items for publication in Aurora, this is your paper, "we want you to use it".

We wish to repeat the following advice to local organizations, let's hope that this time things come out as we intend them: We feel you would have greater success in acquiring finances for your community projects from the business sections of the towns, if in turn when you have purchases to make for that particular group, that you patronize local business, they are the ones who support you.

Blue collar worker: what makes him tick?

From a recent study in Britain of the industrial attitudes and behaviour of the affluent worker: The study, whose principal authors are John Goldthrope and David Lockwood, is an inquiry into the factors which motivate manual workers.

A number of possible factors are named. Work for the pleasure of the task, work as a group activity and the way of life the income allows, work as a group activity or service to an organization.

The British study sets out to examine which of the possible motivating factors are the operative ones among a group of manual workers living in one of Britain's prosperous and growing industrial centers. The labor force was geographically mobile, to a large extent lived in a new housing development, and was thought to be little influenced by the traditions of industrial relations found in older industrial areas of the country.

These environmental conditions and the results of the study could be applied to conditions in Canada. Interviews of 229 manual workers in three firms were made. The firms were: an automobile manufacturer (Vauxhall, a subsidiary of General Motors Corp.) a ball bearing manufacturer, and a chemical firm.

These represent the three characteristic divisions of work organization: assembly-line production, small batch production, and continuous-process operation. Results of the interviews seemed to show strikingly different attitudes among the work group. Questions were put to explore the degree of job satisfaction enjoyed by the men. The group with the middle range of skills seemed to experience more job-satisfaction than either the highly skilled or the semi-skilled groups. Only this group had obtained significant job advancement in its own firm. Both the semi-skilled and the craftsmen had held the same level of job throughout their employment. Only machine setters had achieved a significant breakthrough from their initial occupational level.

Why did the machine setters enjoy their work? "As a setter, I've more opportunity to work on my own initiative, and figure things out for myself. I'm not tied to a machine all day long."

The craftsmen were less happy. They directed their criticism at the organization of their work. "I'd like to have the work allocated and then be free to get on with it without immediate supervision. There are too many people around here who want to know the lot."

Process workers and assemblers were also unhappy. They found monotony, fragmentation, and speed of their jobs their sources of dissatisfaction. They felt more variety would increase their job satisfaction. "Every man should move down a job occasionally, then you'd know every job really well. You could have a move every one or two weeks." "They should make the jobs bigger. There'd be less monotony then."

It was found that many of the machinists and assemblers had at one time done more skilled work than at the time of the study. These jobs were typically for lower pay.

From this, it appears they had chosen to abandon employment which could offer them some greater degree of intensive reward in favor of work that enabled them to achieve a higher level of economic return.

Thus, when the actual choice of job was at stake, these men appeared to decide on the basis of the income returned by the job, rather than the pleasure derived from it.

BIG RED

By JIM KJELGAARD

"Big Red was a champion Irish setter; Danny a young trapper who knew more about the ways of varmints and hounds than of the world of fancy kennels and dog shows. But Red's owner knew a good dog man when he saw one, and entrusted Red to Danny's training."

"This is the story of their unbreakable partnership, of Red's heart and courage and Danny's faith and growing understanding of what it takes to make a good dog and a good man. Their feud with Old Majesty, legendary bear of the Wintapi, and their grim battle with a wolverine are high peaks in a tale which paints the stern life of the wilderness in strong, clear strokes."

"A moving and exciting story of a boy's love for a dog. The feeling of the woods and the outdoors comes through with complete reality."

STORIES ABOUT BIG RED'S SONS IRISH RED

"Mike was the son of that famous Irish setter, Big Red, hero of another fine dog story. But, with all his champion blood, Mike was a runt and a rebel. Against the wilderness background known so intimately to the author and pictured by him so lovingly, Danny and his father hunt and trap and fish and patiently try to make another champion of the reluctant Mike in a fast moving and engrossing story."

OUTLAW RED

"When his crate is jolted off a truck in an isolated area, the sheltered show dog, Sean, champion son of the famous Big Red, is suddenly thrown on his own. Interwoven with the gripping account of the desperately lonely dog's survival in the wilds, his abduction of a mate from her kennel, and his battles with and final victory over a killer coyote dog, is the story of Sean's young kennel attendant, also an outlaw because of an accidental shooting, and the one person to whom Sean longs to give his wholehearted devotion."

Solve - a - Crime

by A. C. Gordon

You Are The Detective

"I'll admit I was in town ten months ago," says the fat gambler, Sam Davis. "But what I was doing the afternoon Joe Dugan was bumped off . . . who could remember that far back?"

"You've been living very high since then," you remark. "Down in Mexico, spending lots of money. And we know you had some dealings with Joe Dugan."

The fat man shakes all over as he chuckles. "Now can you picture a guy my size climbing through the transom over the door to Joe's rooming house room, sticking a knife into him, destroying his book-making records, and making off with ten grand? With this waistline of mine, you know I couldn't have squeezed through that transom."

You nod agreement. "But how about the I.O.U. we found among Joe's possessions, signed by you to the tune of six thousand dollars?"

"Oh, that. Joe must have forgotten to tear it up . . . he had promised. Just the day before he was knocked off I bet a long-shot horse with him . . . and it came in for twelve thousand dollars. Joe was sore about it, but paid me off six thousand bucks, deducting the other six grand I owed him."

Davis yawns and stretches, and as he does your eye is caught by the ornate belt which is strained to the last eyelet around his blubbery middle. As you look, the eyelet suddenly gives up the fight and breaks. "Oh, oh," exclaims Davis. "My favorite belt. Haven't had it very long either. Bought it just last week down in Mexico. Oh well, I feel more comfortable without it."

"Seems to me," you say, "that you had quite a good motive for killing Joe Dugan. Maybe he did deduct what you owed him from your winnings on that long-shot horse, but it seems that a smart fellow like you would have made sure you saw him tear up that I.O.U. I think he held it back for future use against you. You went after it yourself, didn't find it, but came out of the deal with a lot of money instead . . . after killing Dugan!"

"Now, now," says Davis complacently. "You've already agreed that it was physically impossible for me to squeeze through that transom."

You smile at him and slowly shake your head. What makes you think Sam Davis could have murdered Joe Dugan?

SOLUTION

You suspect that Sam Davis has gained much of his weight while living high in Mexico on his newly-gained money. He has said that he bought the ornate belt he was wearing just last week in Mexico. Had he been as fat as he is now at the time of the purchase, most surely he would have bought a much larger-sized belt - not one which strained while fastened by the LAST eyelet! Thus, he conceivably could have been thin enough ten months ago to have climbed through the transom of Joe Dugan's room.

this week in ASTROLOGY BY CARL PAYNE TOBEY ILLUSTRATED BY DE GRAZIA

PAST

PLANETS AND THE SPACE PROGRAM

"In 1965, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration discovered that the duration of a satellite's life in space is directly connected to electromagnetic disturbances of planetary motion and has since been sponsoring neo-astrological research." The above statement was made by David Williams, former purchasing manager of Consolidated Edison Company, according to the Bennington Banner. Williams, who is now retired, used astrology in some of his business decisions.

FUTURE

PRESENT

THE LEO PLAYBOY

Somewhat of a ham, he is generous and kind. He likes to put on a good show. You can enjoy running around with him, but he requires lots of attention because he wants to be the attractive center. If you like to play, he'll play, but he likes a crowd around. If you are too popular with that crowd, you might take attention away from him and that will offend his sensitivities. String along with him and you will discover Loving Leo.

TOBEY'S PREDICTION:

Radical emotionalism of last week not over but will be wearing off during the week. Sunday tensions not good for travel. Plans subject to change. Later part of the week shows improvement. If your birthday is early this week, you have a more exciting year ahead of you. Uranus is crossing your Sun, which it will never do again, and you can start on an entirely new course.

SCIENTIFIC MAGIC

The scientific world is filled with mysteries which have been given fancy names, like photosynthesis, metamorphosis and metasomatosis. By magic, Cinderella changed from a lowly house servant to a beautiful princess. By the magic of nature in photosynthesis, plants change; by metasomatosis, minerals change; by metamorphosis, animals change. We take all these transformations for granted, their mystery hidden in long names.

New stamp will honor Leacock

A 6c commemorative stamp to be released by the Canada Post Office on the 12th November 1969 will honour Stephen Butler Leacock, an internationally famous Canadian humorist, historian and economist, whose boyhood days were spent on his parents' farm some four miles from the south shore of Lake Simcoe in Ontario.

Leacock, one of a family of eleven, came to the pioneer farm lands of Canada some seven years after his birth on 30th December 1869 in the Hampshire, England, hamlet of Swanmore; he died on 28th March 1944 in Toronto where he had spent eighteen years commencing with five years as a student at Upper Canada College.

Thirty - four million Leacock stamps, horizontal in format with dimensions of 40mm x 24mm, will be printed by the designers, the British American Bank Note Company, Ottawa. Photogravure and steel engraving, utilizing green, yellow, red and black, have been combined to render a portrait and appropriate elements including the designer's concept of Mariposa, the fictitious small Ontario town made famous in Leacock's "Sunshine Sketches of a Little Town". Customary First Day Cover service will be provided by the Postmaster, Ottawa 2, Ontario.

PRIORITIES FOR PROGRESS

John C. Crosbie's Policy For Labrador

We should establish a Labrador Advisory Council whose membership would consist of representatives from the various communities of Labrador elected by those communities. Such a council would be consulted by the Government on policies that are proposed by the Government that affect Labrador. It should advise the Government on the views of the people of Labrador with reference to all matters of public interest, would suggest to the Government what changes in policy or what new policies might be needed insofar as Labrador is concerned.

The proposed Labrador Advisory Council must be the active avenue of communication between the Government and the people of Labrador. It would provide consultative machinery so that the people of Labrador would be fully informed about past and possible future developments in Labrador. The council could consider matters referred to it by the Government, or matters initiated by it. It should have the power to bring to the attention of Government any matter deemed significant by the Council. The Council would have the right to be consulted, to advise and warn. There must be developed a Regional Development Plan for Labrador as part of the overall economic strategy for the development of Newfoundland and Labrador. The regional plan should be considered and discussed with the Labrador Advisory Council as the plan is developed.

I support fully the concept of a road connection between Straits of Bell Isle to Goose Bay and from Goose Bay across Labrador to Wabush and Labrador City with a connection to Newfoundland across the Straits by way of tunnel or ferry. This is a sound policy. To accomplish the construction of this road we must persuade the Government of Canada to meet at least 90% of the cost. Every effort must be made to impress upon the Government of Canada the importance of this road.

In the field of communications I support the suggestion that Western Labrador have it's own radio station, owned and operated by residents of Newfoundland and Labrador.

We must encourage the adoption of a joint policy by Canada and the Province whereby special concessions might be given to individuals or businesses which operate in the Northern reaches of Canada. A policy should be adopted that encourages the development of Labrador by providing exciting incentives to individuals and business. With such a programme Newfoundland and Labrador will develop together for their joint benefit.

These are my priorities. I believe these policies, these principles will serve Labrador well.

Drowning statistics released

The Water Safety Service of the Canadian Red Cross Society has released its drowning statistics to date for 1969.

This year so far there has been a total of forty - six drownings in this Province, as compared to fifty - two at the same time last year. Seventeen of these forty - six drownings occurred in a result of people falling overboard from powered and non - powered boats. Again this year it looks like this will be the main cause of death by drownings.

Stephen M. Melamed, Director of Water Safety with the Canadian Red Cross Society, urges Hunters this season to use extreme caution when out in boats, and wear lifejackets. By following a few simple Water Safety Rules, you may live to tell your friends about your hunting experiences.

Scanning the market

By C.S. DEVINE

THE FREE RIDE: For seekers of the "free ride", speculators who hope to sell stock they have ordered before they have to pay for it, these are lush days. The back office paper explosion, which has brought several New York brokerage houses to the brink of disaster, is also a common phenomenon in Canada and speculators are exploiting it as a chance to trade for more stock than their financial resources normally would allow them.

The trick is to put in a purchase order "against delivery", preferably with a large investment house in another city. The purchaser gets the price in force at the time of his order, but may have as much as six weeks' grace before the stock certificate finds its way into his hands. He rarely needs to wait that long before selling and pays or receives only the differences between his buying and selling price. The names of houses with bad back office problems or severe staff shortages can thus be money in the bank. An added bonus, the tardy investment house rarely requires interest charges for the ride.

TRY TO REBUILD PORTFOLIOS:

Current stock market prices mirror the factors that have caused the slump of recent months. Tight money and other anti-inflationary measures and the uncertainty they create, the slowdown in economic growth, the frustrated peace hopes in Vietnam, the changing pattern in the international monetary field, and the bursting of bubbles such as Seaway Multi-Corp. Ltd. H. & M. Tax savers, and Revenue Properties Co.

It appears unlikely, however, that a further major decline of prices, in excess of 10% is ahead, unless a major recession takes place or the measures taken so far fail to slow down the rate of inflation.

On evidence available at this point, a major recession is highly unlikely, nor does it appear that new, drastic measures will be needed to strengthen the current and anti-inflationary policies of the authorities. The market, therefore should be viewed as where the downside risk is less than 10% and where the upside potential is a new plateau of stock prices, well above the 1965-69 highs.

It is too late for investors to engage in debates about the level of cash reserves.

Investors should rather be reconstructing their portfolios and committing their funds and cash flows into companies and industries likely to perform best in the emerging economic climate, while continuing to eliminate dubious stocks.

SHORT SELLERS TAKE THEIR PROFITS: Early this year a lot of stock market traders were banking on a decline in stock prices. In view of the subsequent market collapse, they were entirely correct.

By the end of 1968, the Toronto Stock Exchange Industrial index had advanced 31% from its March low of 144.46. While the index subsequently rose a further 5% above its year-end level, a growing short interest position on the TSE indicated a downward move in the making. By mid-January the short position on the TSE had risen sharply to 2.7 million shares from 1.7 million at 15 Oct. Over the same period, the number of individual stock issues in which there was a short interest, had increased to 333 from 269.

Short selling, a market technique used by the more sophisticated trader, anticipates that a stock's price will decline. In practice it is the exact opposite of the usual market move of buying a stock with the objective of selling it at higher prices. The mechanics of short selling involve selling shares which a trader does not own but which are borrowed through a broker's facilities. The borrowed stock eventually has to be returned to its rightful owner. However the short seller hopes to profit by re-purchasing the stock at a price lower than that at which he sold it. The difference provides his profit.

Smokey Mountain Ski Club newsletter

MEMBERS AND PROSPECTIVE MEMBERS

This year your membership campaign begins September 15 and closes October 31. After October 31, an additional $5 will be added to the family, single and student membership fee.

This year also more facilities will be available to all members. Especially in the 1969-70 season the emphasis will be placed on skiing for children.

THE SKI SCHOOL

Under the direction of Mr. Cole Jardine, preparations for the ski school are well underway. Organized classes will be available for all children who wish to register. "A Nancy Greene Little League Program" will be introduced this year. The object of the program is skiing and racing for fun for children 13 years and under. From 13 to 18 we hope to develop zone races of several classes and form one or two racing teams to compete at other ski zones. The future of our ski club lies in the success of this ski school.

SLOPES

In addition to the recreational slopes with more and improved lighting for night skiing, a long easy trail has been cut from the top of the mountain, a two mile scenic run through the back forest. The two trails on the red lift have been improved to meet national standards for slalom racing and a new giant slalom trail has been cut from the top of the mountain past the "airbomb" to the bottom of the Blue Lift.

SEASON

We have ordered a new snow packer, an Italian machine designed to pack soft snow. With this machine we hope to maintain the slopes from November 1st to early May, and avoid the lost skiing due to heavy fall of snow.

LIFTS

The lifts were completely inspected and repaired during the summer. The blue lift was extended to the top of the mountain within easy reach of the red lift. Lift delays should be much reduced and of short duration.

EVENTS

Qualifying races will be run from the first of the season and racers will be graded more by ability than by age. This should develop keener competition and more interest in your Club.

THE PONTIAC CUP

We had hoped to obtain the final race of the Pontiac Cup series, a National Event. As this is only our second year with the Canadian Amateur Ski Association, perhaps it was too much to wish for. However we have one of the qualifying races in the series, and top skiers from Eastern Canada will be racing on our slopes. In addition to the Pontiac Cup series we have confirmed that the Atlantic Division Alpine and Cross Country finals will be held at your Smokey Mountain Club.

Sunday School newsletter

A CHILD SHALL LEAD THEM... The children of St. Paul's Anglican Church and the children of Carol United Church are blazing a trail for their elders to follow. On Sunday, September 14, they met together to begin their combined Sunday School. For the past number of years these two congregations have conducted separate Sunday Schools. Then a major decision was taken to share on church building, and as a result the opportunity presented itself for closer co-operation. This opportunity was seized on behalf of the children. It is hoped that their example will be followed by the adult members of these congregations.

The times of the classes are: Nursery and Kindergarten - 10:00 and 11:30 a.m.; Primary, Junior and Intermediate - 10:30 a.m.
