NATIONAL POLICE WEEK:

National Police Week has been declared as an annual observation by the Government of Canada and was instituted by the Canadian Association of Police Chiefs and will be held each year during the week in which May 15 falls. The local Labrador City Detachment arranged for students from grades 9, 10 and 11 to have conducted tours of Police facilities and an explanation of related Police equipment used in this area. Also, several Brownie Packs and Boy Scouts Groups were afforded the opportunity of these tours. They were able to get a full explanation of the operation of the Police Radar Unit and actually watched as cars passed into the radar. Another lecture and demonstration was given concerning the finger-printing section of the RCMP. The fully equipped Police Cars, the Cells, the weapons and handcuffs, used by the Police in this area were also viewed by the students. Sgt. Mullaly, the NCO in charge of the Labrador City Detachment, expressed his satisfaction with the interest of residents during National Police week. Approximately three hundred students of the Labrador City Collegiate visited the local detachment. Shown above with Constable Chiasson are a representative group of students (Aurora Photo).

ANNIVERSARY EVENT - Col. Jack Marshall of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment was guest speaker at the dinner commemorating the 25th anniversary of VE Day, held at the Sir Wilfred Grenfell Hotel on Friday, May 8. Approximately 80 veterans attended the event. Col. Marshall is the PC Federal Member of Parliament for Humber-St. Barbe-St. George District. Further coverage on the dinner is covered by Pat Hogan elsewhere in Aurora (Aurora Photo).

News round-up

AIR FARE SUBSIDY ANNOUNCED: - The Provincial government has decided to implement a reduced air subsidy program for travel to and from Labrador. In an announcement in the House of Assembly, the Minister of Labrador Affairs, Captain Earl Winsor said, the original air subsidy program was designed to encourage travel to and from Labrador and had met with a substantial degree of success. He noted Eastern Provincial Airways recently introduced special family plan incentives to enable families to travel between Labrador the Island and return at reduced rates. The new incentives for the family plan are: 100% for the head of a family, 74 per cent of the full fare for the first dependant, 50 per cent of the full fare for children 12 to 21 years, 33 and one-third per cent of full fare for children 2 to 11 years with children under two years travelling free. Captain Winsor said these incentives together with group travel and other special rates now available from EPA demonstrate that "government policy was prudent and has produced beneficial results". He said the government has now decided on a new reduced policy, that became effective May 14th. The new Labrador air subsidy program will limit air subsidy payments to residents of Labrador only. The Labrador Affairs Minister said that for the purpose of the program, a resident of Labrador will be considered as one who resides there permanently and or has permanent employment in Labrador. He said the program will continue to cover residents of Labrador who travel for personal reasons from Labrador to the Island and return, and will not cover anyone in any way associated with or on behalf of the Armed Forces, government or industry, business, organizations or groups of any kind formed for any purpose, or to any person who is eligible for a comparable benefit or reduced rate from EPA.

environmental conditions at the pellet plant and concentrator of the Iron Ore Company of Canada at Labrador City, particularly having reference to atmospheric dust levels in the pellet plant. Mr. Roberts said that to his knowledge or that of the officials in his department, no such complaints have been received.

AUTOMOTIVE DEALERS BEFORE COMMISSION: The federal department of consumer and corporate affairs, restrictive trade practices commission is holding hearings in St. John's into the sale and supply of automobile parts in Newfoundland. Automobile dealers have been subpoenaed to appear before the commission in St. John's to give evidence on alleged price fixing in the distribution of parts to other outlets. R.S. MacLellan, Q.C., chairman of the commission heard evidence last week on the alleged price fixing. The enquiry was closed to the press and public. Mr. MacLellan declined comment when asked why the investigation was ordered. The commissions hearings were carried out under the combines investigation act. Under sections 2 and 33 of the act, it is an offence to participate in a merger that has or is likely to have the effect of lessening competition to the detriment or against the interest of the public. The sections also make it an offence to participate in a monopoly that has been operated or is likely to be operated to the detriment or against the interest of the public.

Section two forbids two or more persons by way or actual or tacit agreement to fix a common sale or resale price of goods or preventing, lessening or controlling competition.

Ambrose Peddle, federal member for Grand Falls-White Bay, Labrador in the House of Commons, recently charged that the passes used by some of the women who invaded the Commons last week to shout for the cause of abortion on demand, had been forged. He said that his signature had been forged on admission cards to get protesters into the opposition gallery. The speaker of the House, Mr. Lameroux, reporting on the forgeries, said Monday's incident was of "legitimate concern to all Canadians who feel Parliament should not be disrupted", by such demonstrations.

Mining briefs

MINING AND THE WHITE PAPER: A. L. Fairly Jr., President, Hollinger Mines: "Had these (White Paper) proposals been in effect two decades ago, the iron ore industry in Northeastern Quebec and Labrador would never have been launched. Because they were not in effect, the Iron Ore Company of Canada was organized. Subsequently, other companies came into production in the area. This mining activity has now grown to include half a dozen new communities with a population that number to 50,000, and it produces about 60% of Canada's export iron ore."

IMPROVED PROFITS FROM BUCHANS MINE: Mining income received by The Price Co., in 1969 from base metal operations at Buchans, Newfoundland, amounted to $3.9 million before taxes, an increase of $400,000 or 11% over the previous year. This gain resulted from higher shipments of concentrates and improved prices. Proven and probable ore reserves remain sufficient to support mine production for another 8-10 years, states the annual report. Terra Nova Properties, which is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Price (Nfld.) Pulp and Paper, the latter 99.8% owned by the Price Co., divides profits from the Newfoundland Buchans and MacLean lead and zinc mines equally with American Smelting & Refining Co. The adit in the Grey River tungsten deposit in southwestern Newfoundland has been extended to a total of 5,300 ft. Work has ceased while metallurgical testing is being carried out on the ore-bearing vein material to determine accurate grades and recoveries for use in feasibility studies. Diamond drilling totalling 10,000 ft. has been completed in a program to outline the depth extensions of the Great Burnt copper deposit in central Newfoundland.

MOVING FROM MONTREAL: In order to co-ordinate rapidly expanding exploration and sales activities, Cominco Ltd. intends to move about 100 senior administrative personnel (but not its head office) from Montreal to Vancouver. Some 10,000 Cominco employees are already located in B.C., mostly at the Trail processing facilities. The board chairman and the secretary of the company will remain in Montreal, while the president and chief executive officer, Mr. R. Hendricks, will divide his time between Vancouver and Montreal. In addition, board meetings and annual meetings of shareholders will still be held in Montreal. A major proportion of Cominco's Canadian operations is located in western Canada, particularly in B.C., while relatively minor interests are retained in eastern Canada. A greater emphasis is being placed on the company's growing exports to Pacific countries, said Mr. H.H. Lett, supervisor of public relations. Mr. Lett dismissed speculations that the move had anything to do with the "French fact." Canadian Pacific Railway Co. which holds approximately 53% interest in Cominco has no plans to move any of its administration or head office personnel from Montreal.

Here 'n' there

LEWES, England. A judge placed on probation recently a man who denied murdering his wife but admitted helping her commit suicide. Mr. Justice Gerald Howard ordered John Legg, 47, to undergo medical treatment after a court doctor testified that Legg had not been responsible for his actions. Lawyers told the court that Legg's wife, Joan 48, had suffered from mental illness that caused her to complain continually of pains. She visited more than 20 doctors and hospitals in recent years. Legg gave up his job as a chauffeur so he could accompany his wife to her medical appointments. Prosecutor William Wells said Legg finally agreed to help his wife take her own life last February by running a gas pipe from the kitchen to the bedroom, where she died in bed. Mr. Justice Howard said Legg had acted under severe stress.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. A Young bear that walked into a man's front yard and attacked him last week, was rabid, laboratory tests have shown. Arno Beltz 38, outwrestled the bear and beat him to death with a shovel. Mr. Beltz said the bear weighed about 90 pounds and stood "right up to my eyes".

MOSCOW: - Poland has followed bitter Soviet complaints of the awarding to Montreal of the 1976 Olympic Games and said Montreal had no experience in organizing large sporting events. Montreal was chosen over Moscow and Los Angeles for the games by the International Olympic Committee in Amsterdam last week. The Russians immediately criticized the decision. The statement also said Canada's withdrawal from the 1970 World Hockey Championships because it could not use professional players contrasted with Olympic amateur principles. The agency accused delegates of the Amsterdam meeting of showing partisanship and favoritism in giving Montreal the Games.

OTTAWA, Ont. - The Canada Fitness Award

program will begin this fall and the federal health department recently announced a contest to name the program's mascot - a raccoon. The contest is open to all boys and girls between the ages of 7 and 17. Details and entry forms have been sent to all primary and secondary schools. Entrants must name the mascot and tell, in 50 words or less, why they chose the name. Winner of the contest gets an expense-paid trip to Saskatoon, for the 1971 Winter Games. There are also prizes for national and provincial runners-up. The contest closes June 20th.

MONTREAL, Que: - Five persons were found guilty of public indecency for their part in a bed-in at the University of Montreal on February 9th. Judge Gerard Tourangeau of municipal court said it is unthinkable that universities should resort to public copulation and indulge in undue exploitation of sex. He sentenced Alain Cognard and Mala Judith Kuntz to two months in jail, Jacques Samson and Marcel Guimond to three weeks and fined Nicole Theriault $100. Defense lawyers argued that the sexual demonstration was performed for the enlightenment of students concerned with sex education. They also pointed out that there is no film censorship in Quebec. Judge Tourangeau dismissed the argument saying the five accused had participated in a grotesque spectacle.

MOSCOW: Russians got a taste of Hair without the "Bare" recently and found it to their liking. Czechoslovak pop singer Karel Gott sneaked in the Age of Aquarius, a hit song from the American production among his slower numbers during a performance at the Czechoslovakia 1970 exhibition in Moscow. The audience, predominantly young Russians with a sprinkling of Czechoslovak exhibition workers, clapped wildly and there were a few scattered cheers. It proved to be the most popular number in the 40-minute show. The only person who apparently wasn't impressed, was a portly female doorkeeper. She folded her arms across her chest, and refused to look at the stage.

When Judy returned from her first day at school she remarked casually: "Mother I told my teacher that you threw the hairbrush at Daddy this morning." "Why on earth did you tell her that?" asked her mother in horror. "Well, she didn't know about it," Judy replied.

Shipments of iron ore pellets and concentrates from Sept Iles and Port Cartier are expected to be substantially higher than in 1969 due to an absence of strikes and the high demand for steel. Last summer the operations of the Iron Ore Company of Canada were effected by a three month strike that severely curtailed shipments. Approximately 1,120 employees of Quebec Cartier Mining Co., Port Cartier and Gagnon also were on strike from May 12th to June 30th. W.J. Bennett, president of Iron Ore Company of Canada, which ship pellets, and concentrates, expects to ship about 21.5 million tons through the port of Sept Iles this year, compared with 12.65 million tons last year. About nine million tons will be shipped to Europe, six million tons to the U.S. Eastern Seaboard and six million to destinations reached through the Seaway and the Great Lakes. This year Iron Ore Co. will be shipping to Japan and about two million tons are destined for that country. IOCC last year enlarged its dock at Sept Iles so that it can handle larger ships and load them faster. The company expects to handle bulk carriers of up to 150,000 tons.

Cost of books is on the rise

By
CONSUMERS' ASSOCIATION OF CANADA

We are experiencing rising costs in food, clothing and housing — in fact, everything we need or want. Books are no exception.

The price of children's books has soared to an unprecedented high and the reason is mainly the increased cost of production.

Unlike many other commodities, however, the price of a book does not necessarily indicate its worth. The old adage "you can't judge a book by its cover" was never as apt as it is today. Attractive format, good binding and expensive color printing may explain the high cost of a certain book, but the price is no guide to its intrinsic value.

When a child takes a book in his hands, he is anticipating an experience. He opens the book expecting it to tell him something — something that will strike a responsive chord within him. If he does not find this "something" he will discard the book, no matter how attractive it looks or how strong the binding. The experience that a child seeks is the spark which gives the book life. Without it, the book is doomed to oblivion and may just as well not have been published.

In choosing a book as a gift, it is important to look for those which children will enjoy owning — books they will read and re-read with fresh pleasure and not soon discard as a toy.

The most important qualities to look for in children's books are the same as those in books for adults. Surely the age level of a book should not determine its quality! Has the book something to say? Is it well written? Is it a story which will catch and sustain a child's interest? Has it good characters, true to life? Has it imagination? Is the subject matter of real interest to a child? If it is a book of science, is it scientifically sound? Is the information correct? Is it presented in a clear and readable style?

In books for your children the pictures must also be considered as well as the text. Remembering that a child's first books will not only give him pleasure but will help form his taste and appreciation of literature and art, there is the double responsibility of giving him the best.

Is it the right book for the right child? Do not underestimate a child's power of appreciation, for it is boundless. With the books you give him, his experience will broaden and his mind will grow.

"A child's range of choice in his reading will always depend upon what is at hand and this will largely depend upon his elders," says Lillian

H. Smith, a children's librarian of wide experience and world-wide reputation, in her book "The Unreluctant Years" which is a critical approach to children's literature.

Adults who are seriously interested in children's reading will find much to interest them in this book which discusses various types of writing and analyzes books touching the whole range of a child's reading interest.

Over the last few years the children's book trade has become big business. Each year the market is flooded with children's books of every description on every conceivable subject. How are you going to choose a book which will foster the love of books and reading in the heart of your child? Obviously you cannot examine every book but there is help at hand.

In libraries across Canada, there are children's librarians whom you employ to do this very job. Many hours are spent by these librarians in reading, considering, sifting and sorting books for boys and girls with the sole purpose of getting the right book to the right child. Their judgement is based upon practical experience. They know children, they know good books and they know how to bring them together.

Why not consult your children's librarian?

Figures released by the department of Social Services and Rehabilitation indicate that during the month of April, adopting parents showed a preference for girls. While the number of children available for adoption hit a new low since 1968 when the number on hand dropped to 494, a new slow-up in April, especially in finding parents for boys, caused the number of children for whom the provincial department of Social Services and Rehabilitation is presently seeking homes, to climb to 507. This total points out the Minister, Stephen A. Neary, includes 161 infants under the age of one year; 117 in the 1 to 2 year group, and 161 between 2 and five. A denominational breakdown: over 50% are Roman Catholics with the remaining children are spread over other denominations.

Premier Joseph R. Smallwood said recently that the Pinkerton Detective Agency is investigating the circulation of a telegram which discourages the development of an oil refinery in Come-by-Chance. The Premier told the Legislature he knew "who was behind the telegram", which was sent to banks and financial agencies in the United Kingdom and elsewhere. "Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent in a campaign against the $155,000,000 refinery, he said.

Leader of the Liberal Reform Group, John Crosbie said he also received a copy of the telegram.

A resident of Corner Brook found out that it doesn't pay to drive a truck with 1,200 pounds of dynamite on board, while drinking pop and eating chips. The driver was fined $25 on each of the two charges, under the explosives act. He was also fined $50 for dangerous driving after he let his truck wander along the riverside drive while engaged in eating. The company, who was not identified was fined $35 for allowing the dynamite to be shipped in the truck without a fire extinguisher. The man appeared in Magistrate's court in Corner Brook last week.

White Paper proposals for tax reform would lead to a contraction of the mining industry in Canada and an expansion in competitor countries, A.L. Fairley Jr., recently told shareholders at the annual meeting of Hollinger Mines Limited. The Hollinger president said that mining is essentially international with respect to mineral potential and the capital required to develop mineral resources. There are, he said, many countries with large mineral potentials where the economic climate for mining is even now at least as favourable as it is in Canada. The proposed elimination in Canada of the existing tax-free period on new mines and the dilution of depletion allowance would make it "inevitable and logical that mining development capital would flow into those countries where the investment risk is recognized and encouraged by the economic incentives of a realistic tax structure," he said. Mr. Fairley also said that existing tolls on the seaway constituted a departure from the principle of toll-free inland waterways on the continent. Existing tolls, he said, conferred a competitive advantage on iron ore producers from the upper lakes competing with eastern Canadian producers in the north central United States steel-making areas. He said that seaway tolls should be abolished and is a first step "governments involved should recognize that tolls can never repay the capital investment of the seaway and that any effort to amortize this capital and meet operating expenses by increasing tolls is doomed to fail." Net profit for Hollinger in 1969 was below that of the previous year as a result of a mid-season strike which halted Iron Ore Company of Canada production for more than three months. Profit in 1969 amounted to 9.9 million dollars or $2.01 per share against $12.3 million or $2.50 per share in 1968. Earnings of Hollinger subsidiary, Labrador Mining and Exploration Company Limited, were also effected by the iron ore strike, falling to $6.9 million or $2.08 per share in 1969 from $7.9 million or $2.38 per share a year earlier.

Scanning the market

C.S. DEVINE

What ail experts thought impossible has finally happened. The Dow-Jones has dipped under 700 and where the bottom is now is anyone's guess. Let us never forget that money makes markets, and money at 10-12% is not conducive to stock buying, and apart from window-dressing by the institutions, the pervading gloom persists. In such an atmosphere, those of contrary opinion begin to have hopes that carefully selected stocks can again be bought that will provide substantial profits over the next couple of years.

The mutual funds whose record over the past year has been far from exciting, are long on both cash and ambition. Their salesmen are hungry for results, even speculative ones. So some pickup can be expected later this year.

Realization that most of the worst features of the so-called tax reform will probably be dropped and that, in any case, implementation of the change is at least 19-20 months away, will encourage investment in the blue chips where grossing up will be advantageous.

Because our biggest customer and supplier of capital is the U.S., what goes on there in the fight, for what one Senator called

"flation" will inevitably be reflected here, civil servants, professors, and ex-chartered accountants notwithstanding. These pundits seem to overlook the fact that even to maintain our present high unemployment at 6% will require immense outlays of capital. Otherwise, a mass exodus of the newly educated is bound to occur.

RESOURCE STOCKS STILL LOOK GOOD ON THE LONG TERM: Historically, tight money and efforts to curb inflation have resulted in a decline in capital expenditures and in a general reduction in business spending. This decline, in turn, has tended to restrict growth in consumer disposable income, with resultant curtailment of sales growth of heavy consumer goods such as housing, automobiles and appliances. The effects of the restrictive monetary policies and curbs on inflation are now evident. There are definite signs of a slowdown in a number of industries as well as a trend toward higher unemployment, and it is not surprising that the market is depressed. Despite these problems, worthwhile growth areas and profitable opportunities continue to be available to selective investors. Natural resource stocks appear to offer better than average prospects for appreciation. This is due chiefly to the increasing demand abroad for a wide range of primary Canadian products, including pulp and paper, lumber, copper, nickel, zinc, asbestos, plus numerous other items.

demand, there is a definite turn toward a stable price structure for many of these materials over the coming years.

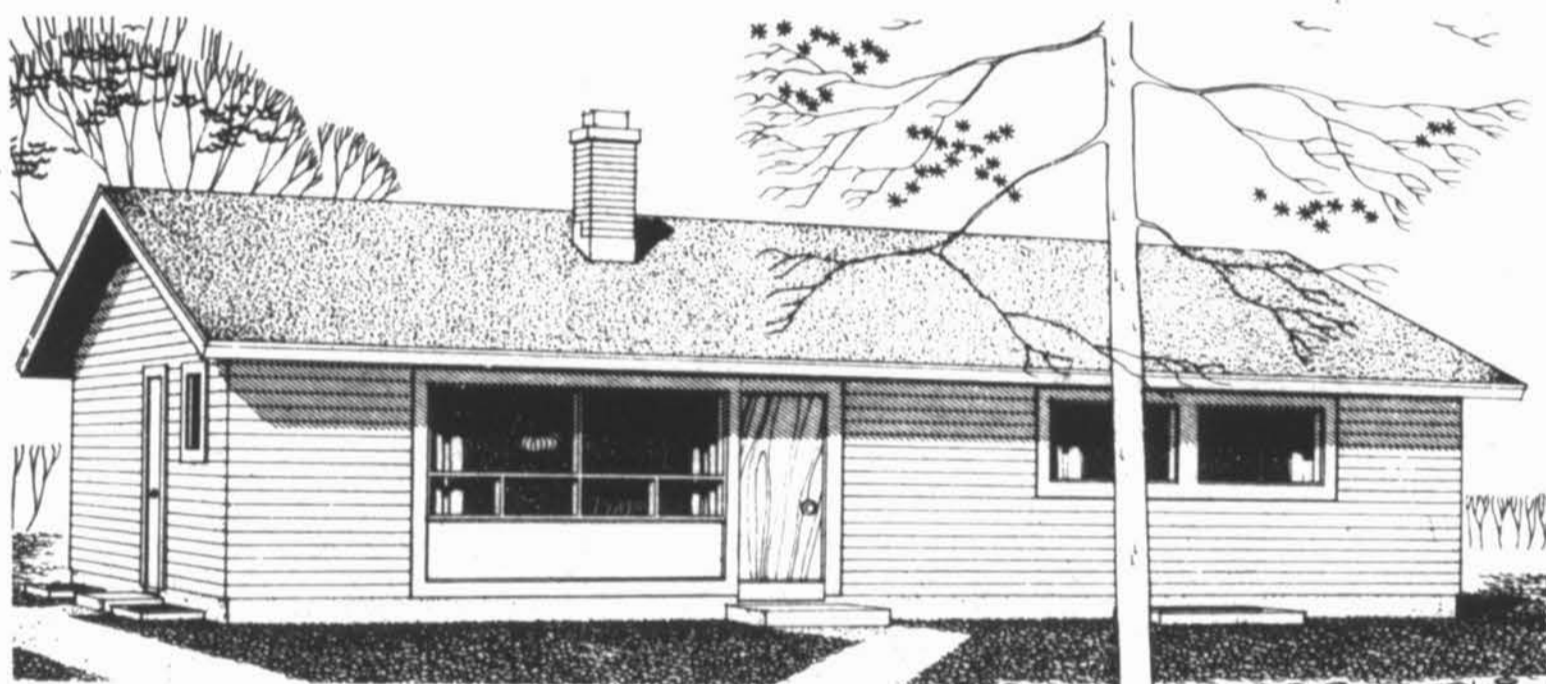

INVESTMENT TERMS AND DEFINITIONS:

Q: What are the main functions of an investment dealer?

A: The investment dealer is mainly concerned with the task of bringing together the supply of capital and the demand for it through the merchandising of NEW issues of bonds and stocks. In the process, he usually acts as financial adviser to the company or government body requiring the capital funds and has a good deal to do with the creation of the new securities. The dealer is also responsible for the distribution of these securities to those with capital to invest and in so doing acts as their financial consultant with regard to their individual investment requirements.

The birth control pill: is it safe?

The official U.S. government verdict was rendered last September.

At that time the Food and Drug Administration completed an exhaustive study. The final document, the "Second Report on the Oral Contraceptives", was 88 pages long and jammed with technical details and a thorough discussion of various side effects that have been blamed on the pill.

The final conclusion was summarized this way: "When these potential hazards and the value of the drugs are balanced, the Committee finds the ratio of benefit to risk sufficiently high to justify the designation safe within the intent of the legislation."

Later, the Committee Chairman, Dr. Hellman, characterized the report as neither a green light or a red one, but a "yellow light of caution" on the pill. The fact that a committee of that country's most highly qualified experts with all the information at hand couldn't reach a clean yes or no verdict illustrates the problem. The fact is that the evidence, while voluminous, is far from complete, frequently inconclusive, and occasionally contradictory.

In view of the risks, known and unknown, consider the alternative methods. In North America, the alternative methods most commonly used are the IUD (intrauterine device), the diaphragm and the condom. Several other methods are used less frequently. The cervical cap is one. It is less effective than the diaphragm or the condom, it may be displaced during intercourse, and many women find it hard to use. Some women still use spermicides without a diaphragm, but their effectiveness is far below that of other methods. Finally, there is rhythm, a method approved by the Catholic Church. Most experts consider it better than nothing, but not much. Finally, there is one grossly underused method. It is virtually 100% effective (even more effective than the pill. It can be used by either the man or woman, it takes only one act to give lifelong protection, and it has no toxic or other adverse effects. The method is sterilization. To get away from the negative emotional content of the word, many doctors prefer the medical terms, tubal ligation in women and vasectomy in men. It is a simple operation in women and even simpler in men. Doctors approve sterilization only for those who are sure they will want no more children.

Nevertheless, the operation is not always irreversible; in up to half the cases it can be undone. And to put one old myth to rest: Sterilization has no physical effect on sexual performance or enjoyment.

However if you decide on the pill, take every possible step to minimize the hazards. Have a complete checkup every 6 to 12 months. The checkup should include a Pap smear, a breast exam and blood-pressure measurement. Use a pill containing the lowest possible amount of hormone. There are two basic types of oral contraceptives on the market, and with each the woman takes pills containing hormones for 20 or 21 days of her menstrual cycle. One type is the sequential pill. For the first 15 days or so of her cycle, the woman takes a pill containing estrogen and progestin.

The second basic type of pill, the combination oral contraceptive, contains both estrogen and progestin in all the hormone pills. Some brands of combination products also give the woman seven additional pills, containing either iron or no active ingredient (placebo), to take to round out her cycle.

The pill was approved in the United States in 1960, long before enough research into its possible hazards had been done. If the pill was introduced now in the same way it was then, it would not be approved. The question now is: Should the pill be taken off the market? Most authorities say NO.

First dosages are down sharply. And despite the fact that some doctors still tend to prescribe high-dosage pills, informed women can make sure that the pill they take contains the smallest possible amounts of estrogen and progestin.

Secondly, the pill undoubtedly is a valuable method of birth control, particularly for women who have difficulty, either physically or psychologically, with other contraceptives.

News from The Marinieres

BY BARBARA ROUSSEAU

Hi everybody, here I am again.

This week I would like to begin my column by thanking, on behalf of the Marinieres of Sept Illiennes the Labrador West Chamber of Commerce for the magnificent gift of a loudspeaker which we received.

It is something that we have wanted for a long time and never seemed to have the necessary funds to purchase. We will have fewer sore throats at practices and parades, with all our hearts, "Thank you Chamber of Commerce of Labrador City." We have been busy with our "Mother of the year" contest, we received 23 names with over 150 votes in all, we were very satisfied with this as it is our first contest of this kind and we are sure that next year will prove to be even better.

Our judges for the contest deliberated at 8 p.m. last Friday and came up with a choice at 12:30 a.m. (so as you can see it was no easy task). We the directors of the Marinieres and the whole population of Sept Iles are very happy with the decision of the judges. They chose Mrs. Rene Geureault, 33, a mother of five children, ranging in age from 4 months to 11 years. Mrs. Gureault lost her husband, father and brother all in the same drowning accident.

This young woman, pregnant at the time, kept on going for the sake of her children, she finds the time to join them in a number of sports, knits, sews and is active in the Acadian Club. I'm sure that you mothers that are reading this are wondering, as I have, where this kind of strength and courage comes from, and I am sure that you agree with me that our first "Mother of the Year" is a very just and wonderful choice. I hope that next week I will be able to send you a picture of Mrs. Gureault and her family.

The Marinieres paid tribute to all the mothers of Sept Iles with a parade and a show at the Plaza Laure on Sunday afternoon, May 10th. We had a very big turnout in spite of the hockey game on TV. The Marinieres also assisted at the Automobile Show (which was the first of its kind in Sept Iles), by giving a concert on Friday night. We had our Datsun Camper at the show with two directors and two Marinieres to sell tickets for the three days. As you can see it has been a long and busy week. If you would like tickets for our Datsun Camper please see Lem Rowe or Alex Hicks.
