TOP-FAVORED CAR

COLOR: What's the most popular color for 1971 cars? Nobody has the percentages for the whole industry, but General Motors of Canada Ltd. officials believe this breakdown for 1971 Chevrolets sold in Canada is representative of current tastes: Lime Green 13.8 per-cent, Dark Green 11.2 per-cent, Bright Blue 9.4 per-cent, Dark Blue 9.4 per-cent, Red 7.6 per-cent, Yellow-Orange 6.2 per-cent, Yellow 5.8 per-cent, Silver 4.5 per-cent, White 2.2 per-cent, Sandalwood 1.3 per-cent, Black 0.9 per-cent.

11:00 P.M. Return to Hotel—(or Airport) for departure to Churchill Falls.

NEW ORE BODY: We have it from a usually reliable source that preliminary work on the proposed new sub-division for Labrador City has unearthed a mammoth Iron Ore body. Initial findings have indicated the area could contain a deposit of some hundreds of millions of tons of commercial ore. Understand an extensive mining survey will be carried out before further site preparation work is permitted. So it could be the Town of Labrador City will have to look elsewhere to expand.

BICYCLES - TRICYCLES -

KIDDIES: The spring weather has brought out the usual rash of "trikes and bikes", etc. And with the housing expansion in both our towns over the past twelve months, we have more than ever this year. To date, we feel the motorist have been very careful in keeping a eye on youthful exuberance. However drivers cannot be expected "to have eyes in the back of their heads." The worst offenders we've seen this year, have been the 3 and 4 year olds trying to operate bicycles on the public streets. This is a practice Aurora believes should cease. It is an extremely dangerous one and parents should not permit their kiddies (3-4-5) years old, to take bicycles onto the public thoroughfare.

Editorially Speaking

CREDIT CARDS, "THE CASHLESS SOCIETY": My own experience with credit cards ended in semi-disaster in 1966, after accepting "a spur of the moment" invitation to attend the wedding of a good friend in Toronto. My decision was made after the banks closed on Friday and Monday was a statutory holiday. I was therefore forced to use the several credit cards I had at my disposal.

Arriving in Toronto I met quite a number of "long-lost" friends. Ask any person who has made the night club - supper circuit in Toronto (even five years ago) and they will tell you it's a mighty expensive proposition. Because of non-availability of aircraft - passenger space, the long-week-end lasted until Thursday morning.

Soon after the bills arrived (including an over-charge of $40.00 from a supper-club). Well when I toted the whole thing up I figured the "jaunt" had cost at least 50 per cent more than if this writer had been a member of the "cash society" at that time.

Within a month I had returned and cancelled all credit cards. And while I have travelled fairly extensively over the past five years, lack of credit cards did not present any problems; that is up to two weeks ago.

It had been about 18 months since I had visited Montreal and looking forward to the occasion, withdrew sufficient cash and purchased Travellers Cheques, in preparation for the trip. However within 5 minutes of landing at Dorval my travelling companion found, cash was not sufficient. After a 40 minute wrangle at a rent-a-car counter we finally obtained an auto and proceeded to one of the larger down-town hotels. I have had occasion, during the past eighteen years, to stay at this particular spot quite a number of times and was quite surprised to be asked for identification (the first time ever).

Of course credit cards were considered the only real way a person should identify himself. During this "police line-up" session - (ultimately we were admitted to the hotel) I heard this from the desk-clerk, "My Birth Certificate and pictured identification cards did not carry my present address." So beware those readers travelling to or thru Montreal this summer, your identity card must carry this information (by order of prying hotel employees).

The following day we were discussing this matter with some people, during our visit to the Eastern Townships, remarking we were headed for the "cashless society." However one small businessman gave us quite an insight into the operation of CHARGEX the largest Canadian Credit Card business (operated by four chartered banks). It seems that when Chargex moved into this area last year, he at first, did not join the plan, feeling it would increase prices. Soon his business was down and he was almost forced to join. This French-Canadian businessman stated the plan increased the cost of living about 4 per cent in that particular area.

This summer Chargex will be coming to Labrador City-Wabush and residents plus business establishments might be advised to take a good hard look before signing up with "The Family Card." Oh yes, we recently came across the following: "Chargex. The four banks that manage the Chargex credit card system are reducing the minimum required monthly payment to 5 per cent of outstanding net balance from 10 per cent. The $10.00 minimum monthly payment is being retained. The new schedule will become effective 5 May."

In conclusion. Don't forget to check your I.D. before taking a trip this summer.

LINERBOARD MILL WORK ON SCHEDULE: Work on the $140 million linerboard mill being built at Stephenville, Nfld., for Canadian Javelin Ltd., is going ahead on schedule, Keith McCaffrey, Javelin's chief engineer on the site said last week. A total of 746 men were on the combined payroll of Javelin and the contractors for the mill.

Mr. McCaffrey outlined work done to date in the main areas of the mill, being built on Harmon Corp. property, about three miles from the town:

In the wood room, foundations for barking drums, chipping and related equipment are poured, awaiting the arrival of the complete wood room building and equipment from Finaldn in mid-summer.

Steel erection in the boiler house area is well advanced. Piers for the lime kiln now are installed in preparation for kiln installation later this month.

Digester towers are erected and installation of 890 ton and 345-ton digesters is underway. In the machine room, the machine sole plates are being set in preparation for the erection of the machine. The operating and main floor areas are under construction.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR
"LACK OF AMBULANCE SERVICE IN LABRADOR CITY"

Dear Editor:

On the morning of April 24, 1971, at 7:45 a.m. I was stopped by the driver of the Company's ambulance, while on my way home from work. He had been waiting on the sidewalk to stop someone to give him a hand in moving an ill resident who needed to be rushed to the hospital. Immediately, without thinking, I proceeded to help.

The man in control of the situation immediately asked me to help him move the person to the stretcher. As the patient a man over 200 pounds, was very big, we had to jostle him around to get him on the stretcher. After maneuvering the man on the stretcher through the house, we placed him in the ambulance. I continued on my way home as I thought everything would be okay from there on.

Much to my surprise, I was informed later that when the ambulance arrived at the hospital, there was nobody there to help move the patient into the hospital, except a couple of nurses who were not capable of lifting such a weight.

After this episode, I was definitely convinced that we do not have an adequate ambulance service, especially when the ambulance arrives with no help. It would have been better if the man's wife had called a taxi.

Did you ever stop to consider that the ambulance is Company owned. If it should happen that there be an emergency on the project and at the same time an emergency in town, naturally the ambulance would be sent to the project.

Also, as far as I can remember from the very insufficient first aid training that I have received, a person in pain should not be moved until he has been attended by a doctor to assure that it is safe to move him. Fortunately, this man wasn't harmed, but I'm sure that if it were possible to harm him through movement he wouldn't have had a chance!

BIRTH CONTROL DEVICES GO ON SALE IN FRANCE: Diaphragm contraceptives for women went on sale in French pharmacies last month for the first time, as laws allowing birth control went into effect. Spermicide creams also were stocked in pharmacies and the Ministry of Public Health said intra-uterine coils also could be purchased. All three products are American.

The 1968-69 laws annulled a 1920 law prohibiting the sale or manufacture in France of birth control devices. Birth control pills have been on sale for two years under doctors' prescriptions only. The birth control measures followed a recent petition by many of the nation's leading women for legalized abortion.

As a result of this incident and several others, I'm sure the people of Labrador City would appreciate it if the following suggestions were carried out:

1. Have our safety or hospital officials publish an article in this paper or distribute pamphlets telling us--the citizens of Labrador City--what we should do in case of an emergency when an ambulance is required.

2. Have our government representative try to acquire government help in purchasing an ambulance for our hospital. Surely our government can give us something to show where our tax dollars go. All I've seen so far is the paved road between here and Wabush. Joey seems to be taking millions and millions these days so I don't think it would hurt the budget if he supplied us with an ambulance.

3. If the government doesn't help, the leaders of our local clubs should get together and launch a campaign to acquire a modern ambulance for our hospital.

As we all know, Labrador City will be doubling in size within the next few years. Where else in Canada are there over 14,000 people without an adequate ambulance service?

I hope this letter will help awaken some of our town officials and make them realize that our ambulance service needs improvement. Also, I would appreciate it if the citizens of Labrador City would write to this paper voicing their opinions on the subject. Remember you may need an ambulance for an emergency sometime!

RESIDENT.

NO MORE OPEN BORDERS? The existence of an open border between Canada and the United States is rapidly becoming a myth. The movement of goods between the two countries has always been subject to customs restrictions but these were tolerable given the difference in the economies of the two countries. But now the movement of people is being restricted, initially by the imposition of immigration quotas and currently, if Congress passes the bill of Senator Muskie, by an end to green cards.

The green cards conferred the equivalent of landed immigrant status on Canadians and Mexicans who commute from residences in their respective countries to jobs in the United States. Senator Muskie wants the practice ended because, he says, Canadians and Mexicans, the latter more than the former, take jobs away from Americans and undercut established pay scales. The senator's bill stipulates that foreigners can take jobs in the United States only if there are no Americans to fill them. Passage of the bill would create severe economic hardship in such cities as Windsor where upwards of 5,000 Canadian residents daily cross the border to jobs in the Detroit area. It would completely disrupt the life of dozens of smaller communities which straddle the border. This is much too high a price to pay to further the presidential ambitions of Senator Muskie.

Just what Canada can do about it is another matter. The federal government is not without bargaining power in this area although it has lost much of its leverage by its own intemperate nationalism. What may ultimately defeat the bill is the common-sense recognition of cooler, more objective Congressmen of the extent to which the economic existence of communities on both sides of the border depends on free movement across it.

Still, Senator Muskie may have performed a useful service in presenting the bill if, by doing so, he has exploded the myth of an open border. It's open only for as long as there is a determination to keep it open. Like so much else in the long, often uneasy and often contentious relationship between the two countries, the open border can't be taken for granted.

YOUR FIRM'S PUBLICATION: They're falling like leaves in autumn — I. B. M.'s "Think", Roan Selection Trust's "Horizon", Boeing's "News", Cominco's "Magazine". Why?

Robert Townsend, the man who made Avis Rent-a-Car try harder, says in his book "Up the Organization." "Reading a house organ is like going down in warm maple syrup for the third time." So he axed the Avis employee publication.

Others say it's the doing of the upcoming electronic multimedia: old-style publications simply can't compete for attention. Perhaps. But it's also failure on the part of many a management to recognize and use a good communication tool in concert with other tools, old and new. Is your company employee publication worth the money and effort involved in putting it out?

Ask yourself if your publication is prepared by someone with access to and the confidence of the senior officers. Does its editor regularly sit in on executive planning sessions? Is he widely recognized as a reliable source of pertinent information about the organization? If the answers are no, the publication may well be headed for trouble. When the editor can't get first-hand information quickly, he's going to grasp at second-hand or third-hand straws, or fill space with non-information, bowling scores and pictures taken at staff picnics. The results might just bolster employee morale. But they will cost money that simply cannot be justified when a strike happens because the rank-and-file refuses to buy a suddenly vocal management's shiny new definition of, say, the term recession.

Ask yourself, too, if the editor has the authority to publish information about the company without a lot of needless censorship. Some restraints are necessary, and thinking industrial editors actually insist their material be checked in draft form by knowledgeable people. Needless censorship, however, is often apparent in organizations where there is little understanding of the communications processes and which fear damaging in closures. This is generally the result of maladministration by someone who was sidetracked into employee communications because he couldn't function effectively in operations or accounting. Ignorant, afraid that he will somehow commit to immortal print (immortal for a few days or weeks, perhaps) an error of fact about the company, he takes refuge in approving only banalities that, even when wrong, won't do the organization any harm. The fact that the noninformation isn't going to help the company in any way, shape or form doesn't register with him as a far more irresponsible attitude.

Now, ask yourself whether the publication has objectives. Not just a few pious platitudes offered orally; I mean written objectives that can be and actually are used to measure the degree to which the content is working for the organization. Finally ask yourself, if your editor is qualified. If he's another side-tracked production man watch out. A few make the grade as business communicators; the great majority do not.

George deMare, a senior U.S. business communicator and editor of the prestigious Price Waterhouse Review, says a publication can only be as good as its editor. He must have the authority, the obvious editorial skills and respect both for his company and his readers. "But," says deMare, "no single quality is more important in an editor than taste — a sort of aesthetic judgement of the material which tells him whether it is valid, appropriate and timely."

"Another qualification, and one often not as stressed as it should be, is breadth. This refers to a general knowledge of what is going on in the world as well as an overall knowledge of company objectives, operations and place in the industry. The outstanding editor is able to bring the overtones of the larger world into his publication.

"In short," concludes deMare, "the editor is the key man in any publication venture. No amount of expenditure for paper or illustrations, for printing or engraving, for material or content, can make a good publication, only a good editor can."

Mining briefs

EXCERPTS FROM THE ANNUAL REPORT OF HOLLINGER MINES LTD.:

"Unless business conditions unexpectedly deteriorate, earning of Hollinger in 1971 will be generally comparable to those of 1970. The expanded Iron Ore Co. of Canada facilities in 1973 will augment earning substantially from that year forward.

The revenue from iron ore interests comes through its holdings of more than 59 per cent in Labrador Mining & Exploration Co. (which controls and subleases iron ore properties in Labrador) and 60 per cent in Hollinger North Shore Exploration Co. (which controls and subleases iron ore properties in Quebec) to Iron Ore Co. of Canada (IOCO). Hollinger holds 10.2 per cent interest in IOCO, Labrador Mining holds 4.7 per cent.

IOCO expects to complete the $290-million expansion program by 1973. At Labrador City, the project will provide new capacity for an additional 10 million tons of concentrates annually. At Sept-Iles, Que., a new concentrating and pelletizing plant will produce six million tons of pellets from the Schefferville area.

Royalty agreements between IOCO and the two subsidiaries have been amended. The new agreements continue the royalty to Labrador Mining and Hollinger North Shore from IOCO at 7 per cent on concentrate and other iron ore products sold, exclusive of pellets where the royalty has been set at 5 per cent of the Sept-Iles selling prices.

The higher value of the pellets that will be sold by IOCO, in relation to the value of concentrates and direct shipping ore previously sold, will have the effect of increasing royalties from this source. Total affect will be that total revenue will rise from the expanded production. The ore purchase contracts between IOCO and its ore purchasing stockholders have been revised and extended to 1996, thus assuring a continuing market for the next 25 years from iron ore products from lands held under leases by Hollinger's subsidiary companies."

SMOOTH CHANGE AT STEELCO: Last month's election of Mr. J.P. (Peter) Gordon as the seventh president of the Steel CO. of Canada Ltd. does not spell an abrupt change in power within Canada's largest steel company. Mr. Harold M. Griffith, the 66-year-old former president, will remain chief executive officer. But Mr. Griffith moves on to become chairman of the board, replacing Mr. V.W. Scully. Mr. Scully, 71, in turn becomes chairman of Stelco's executive committee; he was president from 1957-1966, and chairman of the board after that.

Mr. Gordon, at 50 the youngest member of Stelco's senior management team and the clear heir apparent, will play a growing role in company decision. His background in the production side of Stelco suggests he will hasten the sod-turning for Stelco's long-delayed, $1 billion steel making complex at Nanticoke on Lake Erie. And he probably will want to introduce new technology for more efficient production. Industry observers also expect the vigorous new president to improve communications with labor. Management-labor relations at Stelco have been decidedly cool since the lengthy strike of 1969.

Mr. Gordon was born in the steel city of Hamilton and graduated from the University of Toronto as a mechanical engineer. He joined Stelco in 1946, became vice-president of operations 20 years later, and last year was appointed senior vice-president in charge of sales operations.

BETHLEHEM STEEL REPORTS INCREASED PROFITS: Last week Bethlehem Steel Corp., No. 2 producer in the United States reported "a substantial improvement" in profits for the first quarter of this year but complained it was still "unsatisfactory."

Board Chairman Steward S. Cort told stockholders at the annual meeting that net income for the 1 Jan. - 31 Mar. period totalled $33.1 million or 75 cents a share, up 17 per cent over the $28.3 million and 65 cents for the first quarter of 1970. "The return on investment was only 5.9 per cent, which is unsatisfactory in that it is only half the average return on investment of all manufacturing industries," Cort said.

CANADIAN MINES SHOW RECORD DIVIDEND PAYOUT: The Canadian economy may be in a slump, but you wouldn't know it by the record dividends being paid by Canadian corporations. A compilation by Bongard, Leslie & Co. for the first four months of this year shows payouts of $530.7 million versus $503.5 million in the same period a year earlier and $457.3 the year before that.

Mining companies alone have paid out $86.4 million compared with $72 million in the first four months of 1970 and $63.6 million in the 1969 period.

CONTROL OF RAMBLER INTO HANDS OF IRVING INTERESTS: To all intents and purposes control of both Consolidated Rambler Mines and Northern Canada Mines has passed into the hands of K.C. Irving interests of New Brunswick. It all came about quietly, and almost imperceptibly at the recent annual meetings when L.M. Ritchie representing - K.C. Irving Ltd., and D.A. Macfarlane, representing Atlantic Coast Copper Corp., voted 540,000 shares and 230,000 shares respectively, against management on several significant points.

First was a routine motion to reappoint auditors. The Irving representatives suggested - and got - the firm of McDonald, Currie & Co., rather than Northern Canada's long-time auditing firm. Then in a balloted poll, they defeated a new by-law that would have increased the board of directors from five to seven. The coup de grace came when management nominated seven candidates for the board as per the pre-meeting legal notice. Messrs. Ritchie and Macfarlane added another three names. Of managements 7-man slate, only C.S. Kennedy and R.J. Isaacs were returned. Elected to the board for the first time were Messrs Ritchie, Macfarlane and W.D. Macaulay, another Irving nominee. Northern Canada holds 610,560 shares of Cons. Rambler and through Atlantic Coast Copper have made large purchases of Rambler stock on the open market.

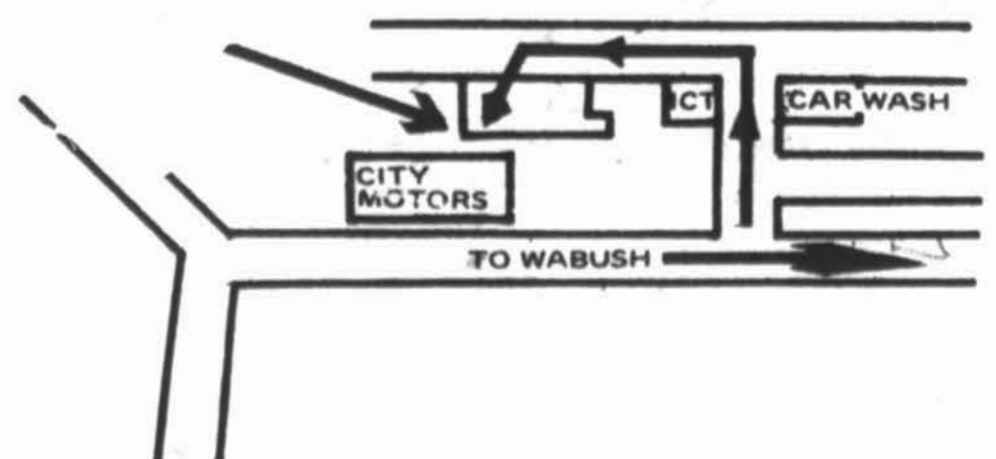

The company has had recent good fortune as regards its Rambler operations in Newfoundland, Mr. Kennedy, vice-president, told the meeting. Engineers are now working on tonnage calculations for its new orebody, which will "materially improve" Rambler's earning picture. A new road to the new ore site is now being improved, electric power is going in and the adit site is being cleared. Breaking of rock will get started this month with production to start in August and reach 10,000 tons monthly by September. The company's present mill is to be utilized, but some modifications may be called for.

Northern Canada continues to get advance of $50,000 annually for Hanna Mining Co., which holds its 31-claim iron property under option, the meeting was told.

RECORD NFLD. SPENDING: Record spending of $507,639,500 and no tax increases were announced in the Newfoundland provincial budget brought down on 29 April. Total revenue was forecast at $409,461,900 with a deficit of $92,241,500 on capital account and a surplus of $63,900 on current account. The government plans to borrow $154,862,400 and spend $56,684,800 on debt retirement.

A SPIRITED VACATION? Ontario's liquor control board is taking a lesson from the ice-cream man and trucking its product to the customers. Maj. Gen. George Kitching, the liquor board's chief commissioner, announced earlier this month that mobile liquor stores will begin next month to roll into Ontario's vacation country, their service beginning with boaters on the Trent and Severn water systems.

VEST-POCKET CALCULATOR: a 12-digit, mini electronic calculator that can be carried in a vest pocket has been developed by a Japanese company. It uses a light-emitting diode display, and has a built-in rechargeable battery. Some 3,000 electronic elements are in a space the size of a grain of rice.

The lighter side

REAL LOVE: An Englishman was on trial before the high court of Australia for the crime of molesting an ostrich. Before passing of sentence he was asked if he had anything to say. The Englishman replied: "Your honor, if I'd have known you were going to make such a fuss about it, I'd have married the bird."

LEARNING TO SWIM: A householder, suddenly faced with a flooded basement, put in an emergency call to his plumber. The plumber wasn't in, however, so a message was left with his answering service. Hours later, the plumber arrived at the disaster address, apologizing profusely. "How on earth did you manage?" he asked. "Oh, it wasn't too bad. While we were waiting we taught the children to swim."

THE UMPIRE: A baseball umpire suffered from headaches and finally consulted a doctor. After an examination the doctor said, "I think you need glasses." The umpire jumped up and jerked his thumb. "That'll cost you $100.00," he roared, "and you're out of the game."

I'LL GIVE UP: The young couple were canoeing in the middle of the lake, when suddenly a squall hit. Terrified at the intensity of the wind and rain, the boy started to pray. "Oh, Lord, save us and I'll give up smoking...I'll give up drinking...I'll give up up..." At this moment the young lady yelled, "Dont give up anything else! I think the storm's over."

FAT IS IN: From the "Executives' Digest": "You've heard about how skirt lengths forecast economic conditions? Well, a belt manufacturer says belt lengths are also a barometer of business conditions. He points out that during the depression the average American wore a 31-inch belt. Today's affluent American wears a 43-inch belt."

DONATIONS FROM ALL SOURCES: The minister was asking his congregation to donate as much money as they possibly could for the new church. Suddenly the town's lady of the evening spoke up and said, "Reverend, I'd like to donate twenty-five hundred dollars!" The minister replied, "As much as we need funds, I refuse to accept tainted money." A male voice in the back of the church shouted out, "Take it, Reverend. It's our money anyway."

BUSINESSMAN COUNTING SHEEP: Told by his doctor to count sheep to help his insomnia, he did — all night long, and reported next day he hadn't slept at all. "For four or five hours I counted sheep. I counted up to 20,000. Then I began thinking, 20,000 sheep would produce 80,000 pounds of wool, that would be 30,000 yards of cloth, that would make 12,000 overcoats, hell, doctor who can sleep with an inventory of 12,000 unsold overcoats."

THE SPECIAL PRIZE: "Now, children," the harried mother announced to the noisy small fry at her son's birthday party, "remember there will be a special prize for the boy who goes home first."

"RAG TIME": Although not many people know it, Alexander the Great was responsible for the first wrist watch. The inaccuracy or awkwardness of timepieces then was a handicap in planning, so Alexander ordered his alchemists to produce a timepiece that was both accurate and portable. A special solution was concocted that caused strips of cloth to change color every hour once the rags were dipped in it. These rags were then tied to the wrists of his officers. These early wrist watches were called, of course, "Alexander's rag timebands."

THINK ABOUT IT: Jerry had always been quite a Lothario, but he was getting on in years. He was now eighty, as a matter of fact, but he couldn't accept his loss of ability with the opposite sex. He visited his doctor to find out what could be done about his problem. The doctor said, "Well, what do you expect at your age?" Jerry replied, "But my next door neighbour is eighty-five and he says he makes love almost every night." The doctor thought for a minute, then said, "Well, can't you say the same thing?"

THE ISRAELI AMBASSADOR IN A RECENT U.S. SPEECH: "Moses travelled 40 years in the desert and picked the only country in the Middle East with no oil."

NEW DOC, OLD TRICKS: A young dentist, setting up his first office, was anxious to win the trust of new patients. "How can I convince them I really know my business?" he asked an elderly uncle, also a dentist. "Let them know you've been around a while. I'll help — by sending over all my old magazines."

TANYA SNOW KART CLUB

On Saturday May the 1st the Tanya Snow Kart Club held a dance and Trophy Presentation at the Wabush Legion. The dance was a success and our apologies go to the people who had to be turned away as there was no room.

A vote of thanks must go to our new social committee and those that helped for the fine lunch that was provided. The door prize was a bottle of champagne donated by the Wabush Legion.

The trophies were presented during the break for lunch, while the Band was having its much needed rest after playing to a full capacity crowd for every dance.

A 1st and 2nd place trophy in each class was given for the total points accumulated for all events held during the season.

The winners were as follows—
 Class A 2-295cc 1st R. Shackleton, 2nd N. Villeneuve.

Class B 296-340cc 1st Ken Wolfe, 2nd Martin Pretorius.

Class C 341-440 cc 1st Urbain Lavoie, 2nd Clement Trembley.

Class D 441-640cc 1st Martin Pretorius, 2nd James Troke.

Class E 641-800cc 1st Jacques Mathieu, 2nd Michel Pelletier.

A trophy was also presented to the driver who had accumulated the most points throughout the year. This trophy is an annual one and remains with the club, with the winner's name being inscribed on the trophy. The winner this year was Urbain Lavoie.

Gilles Paquet was presented with the Best Sportsmanship Award. It is an award for the driver who takes both the wins and losses in his stride and shows courtesy and good sportsmanship both on and off the track.

In closing I would like to remind all members and interested persons, that if you have a spare evening or weekend drop out to the club house as the building committee needs lots of help.
